This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Introduction

THE impulse to make this book came from one who was born in New England, but long resident in Old England, Mr. Charles Pierce Merriam, whose personal biography is written in its order at No. 1010. Not content with having spent more than a thousand dollars and much labor of investigation and supervision of others' work in the production of an exhaustive presentation of the documentary history of the Merriams of Kent, he felt a desire to see a genealogy of the American family and was ready to bear a good share in the cost of securing it. So when he and Mrs. Merriam were in Boston on a visit in November, 1905, he inquired for a suitable person to compile and publish such a work, and in a few weeks had organized a committee and outlined a course of procedure, leaving his Good Samaritan payment when he sailed, as the nucleus of a fund and a token of the generous financial aid he was to give in succeeding months.

The committee who ventured upon and have carried through this enterprise, advancing money and giving their influence and advice freely, are:

Charles Pierce Merriam, of London, chairman.

John McKinstry Merriam, of South Framingham and Boston, secretary and treasurer.

Henry Harrison Merriam, of Worcester.

Charles Merriam, 2d, of Weston.

Joseph Merriam, of Middletown, Ct.

Through all the agencies of correspondence and research known to the genealogical profession the work was undertaken by the compiler without delay; and scores of willing responses came from mothers and fathers and sisters and brothers of the broad family, supplying the information needed to supplement that derived from published books and public records. Herewith let every one of these generous souls take the writer's hearty thanks. The name of one daughter of the family is specially worthy of mention, — Miss Mary Bates Merriam (see No. 554), — who had made a fine collection of records, newspaper cuttings, and letters on the family history, and kept in touch with the authors of printed and manuscript genealogies for years; and has most courteously furnished all these treasures for the inspection and assistance of the writer.

The histories of Concord, Bedford, Lexington, Ashburnham, Westminster, Cambridge, Gardner, Grafton, and Oxford in this state, Mason, N. H., and Waterbury, Ct., have furnished a great deal of help; other publications have added something. The printed records of towns have been of much assistance as tests of investigations already made by one and another. Every reasonable effort has been made to carry out each line and locate every person of the family; failures to answer our letters are responsible for most omissions or errors.

But all the while there had been three definite pieces of genealogical work done upon this family in America: Mr. Rufus Nichols Meriam, of Worcester (No. 476), after some correspondence and research, prepared an article on the subject, which he read before the Worcester Antiquarian Society, and afterward published with the title, "Some Meriams and Their Connection with Other Families;" he also gathered much information subsequently, which he copied into several manuscript volumes, and gave to the Society; the compiler has had access to them by the courtesy of the librarian, and has found some things there which he had been unable to get from other sources. Mr. Meriam's work was of a pleasant, chatty sort, including many things which could not well be incorporated in this larger work.

The second work which saw the light was that of Mr. William Sumner Appleton, of Boston, a great-grandson of No. 19, q. v.; he had discovered the will of the father of the "three brothers," who came here as pioneers, and his little pamphlet, "The Merriam Family of Massachusetts," was a very workmanlike affair. He presented the first four generations of the family here, omitting, however, one group of them, which had been treated in a town history. His work merits high honor, and made a fine basis for the beginning of the study by this compiler.

Meanwhile, the third laborer had done vastly more than both the men described, yet had not ventured to put anything in print. Mr. James Sheldon Merriam (No. 653) began before either of the others, we believe, to collect facts and arrange them in order as for a book; he gave many a point to R. N. M. while he was preparing his paper, and whole pedigrees to the Dictionary publishers and scores of other "inquiring friends." He accumulated hundreds of family records, embracing individuals into the thousands, through long and persistent correspondence and investigations, at large expense, for many years. The writer of this work knew nothing of this vast compilation till he had gone over much of the same ground, and a good deal more; but on learning of it, he did not rest till he had arranged for the combination of the two compilations in the present work, by the very generous consent of Mr. Merriam. Not less than a hundred and fifty family records came to this book from his ledger-like manuscript volumes, which the writer had been unable to procure otherwise, and many a note and detail for other records. Either compilation might have been published separately and made a very respectable genealogy; but the two combined constitute a far worthier work.

In the pages which follow, the reader will first find a reprint of the larger part of Mr. Charles Pierce Merriam's book from title and preface to the conclusion of what definitely relates to the American family. Then begins the real genealogy, which passes on through twelve generations, from the Kent progenitor. In the Appendix we give the Revolutionary Records of this Commonwealth relating to this family and other matter. We suggest that readers make use of the indexes and the Appendix as well as the main body of the book.

At every point of a work like this, the liability to error accompanies a writer; he may copy wrongly or read proofs shabbily; his correspondents may have erred in their records or copies; the books quoted may have contained faulty statements; sometimes two families may be confused. But it may be believed that the general course of the book is correct, and the large majority of its lines true.

May it unite relatives, stimulate proper family feeling, nerve to still higher living in imitation of the worthy kindred, who have finished their earthly course and entered into their rest and reward.

GENEALOGICAL MEMORANDA

RELATING TO THE

FAMILY OF MERRIAM

Preface

(To Genealogical Memoranda)

THE name of Merriam is now a distinctly American name.

Although in 1638, when Robert, George, and Joseph Merriam, the sons of William Merriam, of Hadlow, in Kent, emigrated, and settled at Concord in Massachusetts, there were living at several places in Kent, as is shown by these evidences, a number of people bearing the name, it has now, as far as is known, quite died out in that county, and as regards the English branch, altogether in England.

The writer of this preface, who was born in America, being great-great-grandson of Nathan Merriam mentioned in Mr. W. S. Appleton's pamphlet, "The Family of Merriam of Massachusetts" (1892), has been for a number of years the only Merriam in the London Directory, and, during a residence in London of nearly thirty years, has only come across English representatives of the name two or three times. About twenty-five years ago there was in the London Directory the name of William Merriam (since dead) whose father came from Maidstone in Kent. It is remarkable that on the 27th June, 1889, there died at Linton, in Kent, John George Merriam, stonemason. Linton is the next parish to Boughton Monchelsea, where among many Merriam records we have the will of John Meryham, mason, 1455. One may almost assume that the name of John and the trade of mason had gone from father to son for over four hundred years.

The only place in Great Britain, where apparently the name has lived on, is Pembrokeshire, where there was in the sixteenth century a manor of Meriham or Myrryam; and where, that is to say in the town of Tenby, about fifteen years back, Mr. John Merriam was living, who knew that his family had been resident in Pembrokeshire for one hundred and thirty years.

In America, on the other hand, the descendants of the three brothers have become, if not very numerous, at any rate a fairly good number, if one may judge by the comparative frequency of the name.

It is a matter for the greatest regret that the birth and marriage of William Merriam, the father of the emigrants, cannot be definitely traced. We have at Horsmonden, an adjoining parish to Tudeley, the baptism of a William Merriam in 1580, which is a possible date, but we cannot be certain of his identity. Of the four places mentioned in William Merriam's will, where he held property: Goudhurst, Yalding, Hadlow, and Tudeley, search has been made for the births of the emigrants, and could these be found no doubt the father could be identified. Unfortunately neither Goudhurst, Yalding, nor Hadlow registers have them, and the old register of Tudeley disappeared during the civil war, shortly after the emigration of the brothers, and has never since been found.

William Merriam, we know held land in Tudeley, and was a clothier. Tudeley had a cloth industry in his day, and we may not unreasonably suppose that in Tudeley he married, and that there his children were born. Mr. Appleton notes that the will of James Burgess, of Tudeley, 1590, mentions his son-in-law, William Merryan, who when one takes into account the casual spelling of that time, may be the father of the emigrants. He is also probably the William Merriam mentioned in the will of Robert Piper, of Tonbridge, 1616, as his brother-in-law; Tonbridge being the next parish to Tudeley, and Robert Piper being also a clothier. On page 23 will be found the record of the sale of the land of George Merriam, one of the emigrants, in the year of his emigration.

Of Merriam records, more have been found than could perhaps be expected in view of the distinctly middle-class position of the family. The number of wills may be considered large; the parish entries are very numerous, and begin in 1558, the first year of Queen Elizabeth, and the first year in which parish registers were regularly kept, and the first mention of the name, 1295, is far enough back to satisfy almost any one. In fact this date is very near the time of the introduction of surnames in families not noble. No effort has been made to search for records after 1650; a few have been found incidentally and inserted.

The yeomen of Kent, to which class many of those whose wills are here recorded belonged, have a creditable place in English History, coming to the front a good deal as archers in the French wars. They were usually freeholders and men of substance as the old rhyme testifies:

> " A Knight of Cales, a Gentleman of Wales,
> And a Laird of the North Countree.
> A Yeoman of Kent with his yearly rent
> Can buy them up all three."

The discovery of the original spellings of the name: Meryham, Merryham, Meriham, altogether settles the question of its meaning.

Both Merry and Ham are Saxon words. They are defined in Bosworth's " Dictionary of the Anglo-Saxon Language," London, 1808, as follows:

Mirige, myrig, adj. Merry, pleasant; hilaris, jucundus.

Ham, a home, house, dwelling; domus.

Ham, as a termination, in the names of places, denotes a home, dwelling, village.

Canon Bardsley in his book, " English Surnames," in a note to Chapter VI., says: " We never use ' Merry ' now in relation to sacred things, though our English Bible does. The fact is, the word has somewhat sunk in the social scale. Few preachers would say as Bishop Bradford could, quite naturally in his day, ' The Lord for Christ's sake give us merry hearts to drink lustily of his sweet cup.' "

With regard to Ham, Canon Isaac Taylor, in " Words and Places," Chapter VII., " The Anglo-Saxon," says: — " The suffix ' ham,' which is very frequent in English names, appears in two forms in Anglo-Saxon documents. One of these, ham, signifies an enclosure; that which hems in — a meaning not very different from that of ' ton ' or worth. These words express the feeling of reverence for private right, but ham involves a notion more mystical, more holy. It expresses the sanctity of the family bond; it is the home, the one secret (geheim) and sacred place. In the Anglo-Saxon Charters we find this suffix united with the names of families — never with those of individuals. This word, as well as the feeling of which it is the symbol, was brought across the ocean by the Teutonic colonists, and it is the sign of the most precious of all the gifts for which we thank them. It may indeed be said without exaggeration, that the universal prevalence throughout England of names containing this word home, gives us the clue to the real strength of the national character of the Anglo-Saxon race. What a world of inner difference there is between the English word home and the French phrase chez-nous! It was this supreme reverence for the sanctities of domestic life which gave to the Teutonic nations the power of breathing a new life into the dead bones of Roman civilization."

In the light of the opinions of these good authorities, we can best and quite fairly define in modern English the meaning of Merryham as "Happy home," and it would be difficult, with a free choice, to desire a better origin for a name. The first man, Laurence, John, or William, who in order to distinguish him from other Laurences, Johns, or Williams, came to be known as Laurence, John, or William of the Happy Home, must have been an ancestor of whom one may be proud. It would of course be a great satisfaction to find out where the original "Happy Home" was, but it appears very unlikely that this can definitely be discovered. Nearly all the places where Merriams lived, as shown in the wills and other records: Goudhurst, Horsmonden, Boughton Monchelsea, Maidstone, Yalding, Cranbrook, are in Mid-Kent, and Merriams appear to have been most numerous in the Weald of Kent, as the beautiful hilly region in the south of Mid-Kent, and formerly running into Sussex, is called.

There is a very ancient reference, which but for one little letter s would exactly suit our case. I allude to an Anglo-Saxon Charter of King Ethelred: the grant of Meresham, mentioned in Furley's "History of the Weald of Kent," volume i., page 85. To trace back to the days of King Ethelred would be a fascinating prospect, but we must not allow ourselves to diverge from the strict path of rectitude.

The oldest distinct Merriam reference we have was discovered by Mr. Dickinson at the Record Office, where it appears that in the year 1295–6, Laurence de Meryham paid taxes to Edward I., at Isenhurst in Sussex. Isenhurst is in East Sussex, closely adjoining the Weald of Kent.

It is difficult to construct any theory which will explain the existence in the sixteenth century of the Manor of Meriham in Pembrokeshire, the southwest corner of Wales. We must assume the emigration of some Kentish Merriam to Wales, possibly in the train of one of the conquering Plantagenet princes. The name being Saxon, and the Saxons having never subdued Wales, it is clear that the original location of the name was in England, and tolerably certain that it was in Kent or Eastern Sussex.

I think it right to state that until I met Mr. James S. Merriam, of New York, some years ago, I was unaware of any Merriam records in England; he directed my attention to the will of William of Hadlow, the father of the emigrants (published in 1892 in Mr. Appleton's pamphlet).

This gave me the clue to the district, and I found several Horsmonden and Goudhurst wills; visited both these very quaint and beautifully situated places and others in the neighborhood, and discovered a number of parish entries, and then turned over the search to the late Mr. C. E. Gildersome-Dickinson, who labored most intelligently and conscientiously, and in view of how little had been found before, with great success. Since Mr. Dickinson's lamented death last year, the manuscripts have been prepared for printing, and the pedigrees and indexes arranged by Mr. George F. Tudor Sherwood, Record Agent, London.

In 1333 Margery the daughter conveyed it to William Stannynden of Lamberhurst and Roger Laket of Blechynton, near Seaford, which conveyance was confirmed by Thomas, son and heir of Sir John Harengaud. In 1334 Stannynden released to Laket all his right in the premises, which were holden in capite of the Priory of Lewes, and the said Laket in 1336 assigned to the Abbey of Robertsbridge, with the sanction of Peter de Joceaux, Prior, and in consideration of an annual payment of 10^{d}, together with a rent of 4^{s} 5$\frac{1}{4}^{d}$ which JOHN DE MARYHAM paid for another tenement in Waldron aforesaid, called atte Watere.—Publications of Sussex Arch. KENTISH FEET OF FINES, LAY SUBSIDIES, POLL-BOOKS, AND MISCELLANEA

Kentish Feet of Fines [searched from April, 1509, to Michaelmas, 1642]. (Public Record Office, London.)

The records known as Feet of Fines almost invariably have reference to the transfer of real estate — the first parties, designated plaintiffs, petentes, or querants, being the buyers; the second parties, called defendants, tenentes or deforciants, the sellers. When a fine was levied the practice was to engross a record of the transaction in triplicate, upon a single sheet of parchment, and then to cut the sheet into three, handing one copy to the buyer, one to the seller, and keeping one, known as the foot, in the custody of the court.

The word Fine has reference to the fact that the document is a record of the "finis" or end of a fictitious suit, brought by the buyer to eject the seller from possession of the estate in question. The defendant, always, of course, let judgment go against him by default, and so the "feet" of these "final agreements," indisputable evidences of title, were filed as records of absolute transfer of real estate from one person to another. The Feet of Fines beginning in the reign of Richard I. [A.D. 1195] "cover an unbroken period of over six centuries, and have no parallel in the records of any other country." * — G. F. T. S.

Kentish Lay Subsidy Rolls.

The Lay Subsidy Rolls (Henry III. to Wm. & Mary) preserved at the Public Record Office, London, "consist of the Rolls of Accounts, Assessments, Inquisitions, Certificates, and other documents relating to the assessing and collection of the Tallages, Carucages, Scutages, Aids, Subsidies, Loans, Benevolences, Contributions, Reliefs, etc., granted to the King by the Laity in Parliament, or enjoyed by him in virtue of the Royal Prerogative or ancient prescriptive right. As many of these Rolls contain the names of the persons assessed towards the payment of each subsidy, they are extremely valuable in the compilation of pedigrees, showing at once the precise hundred and township in which the family lived at the time of the assessment, and also to a certain extent its rank and position, which may be deduced from the amounts paid." In explanation of some of the following entries, where two amounts are entered against a name, thus: "John Meryam, in goods xli — vs." it may be pointed out that ten pounds was the assessed value of John Meryam's goods, upon which he paid a tax of five shillings. — G. NOTE BY THE AMERICAN COMPILER

In addition to the foregoing pages we reprint on subsequent pages, in their proper connection in the genealogy, the will of William Merriam, of Hadlow, and extracts from those of Robert Pyper and Robert Goldstone.

There are also in the English Book several wills of persons who are definitely known to have been of other lines from that of William, of Hadlow, that is, neither his ancestors nor brethren; and reports of Chancery proceedings relating to some of those persons; also documents concerning persons of the name at later dates than the death of William, with whom this genealogy really begins. All these articles add greatly to the comprehensive exhibit of the Merriam Family in England, yet we have thought them not needful for the purposes of this work. They show how thoroughly Mr. Charles Pierce Merriam and his assistants explored every available source of information and with what remarkable success. But this book simply aims at presenting the succession of documents in which there may be seen a definite family life, whose current, though spreading out somewhat broadly at first, narrows down to the time and home of the man at Hadlow. — C. Merriam Genealogy

In England and America

FIRST GENERATION

WILLIAM MERRIAM,

the first of this line of whom we have at this writing absolute proof, and from whom the numbering of the generations in this book proceeds, was a resident of the county of Kent certainly for many years. In the "Kentish Lay Subsidy Rolls we find several entries which definitely point to him."

"A.D. 1598. Tudeley: Willm. Meryam, in goods iijli. ——— viijs."
"A.D. 1599. Tudeley: Willm. Merriam, in goods iijli. ——— viijs."

Similar entries and amounts slightly varying appear for the years 1600, 1610, 1611, and 1621, with changes of spelling quite sufficient. No record of his residing at Hadlow appears in these documents.

In the deeds of land, the only equivalent of which exist in "The Feet of Fines" in early English records, we find the following, which must refer to the man we are considering.

"A.D. 1614. Easter term, 11 James I. John Stylman and George Wymble, plaintiffs v. William Myriam and Sara his wife. One messuage, three stables, one garden, one orchard, two acres of arable land, one acre of meadow and one acre of pasture in Sevenoaks, co. Kent."

Perhaps this property had come into the family through Sara, the wife, and was now being turned into money to be used in the business of the "clothier;" for this was the trade of William, as we learn from the next document which has been found relating to him. He lived to a period when he called himself " aged," a word which has been applied to people all the way from fifty to a hundred years of age, but which, in general, suggests the neighborhood of seventy-five. Whether he carried on his business at Hadlow or was living there in well-earned comfort after a busy career at Tewdly, where we find his eldest son living, no one can say; but his will does not mention any buildings or apparatus belonging to the trade. A " clothier " was a man who combined the various departments of cloth-making and handled the products. The carder prepared the wool for the spinster; the weaver passed his pieces over to the webster and fuller; the tucker got things in shape for the shearman; and the clothier criticized, accepted, or rejected, and adjusted the prices of the cloths, and put them on the market. One of the ancient guilds of old Devonshire, that at Exeter, was " The Guild of Weavers, Fullers, Tuckers, and Shearmen," whose records the writer examined in 1887. Clothiers were generally men who comprehended the entire process of manufacturing cloth, and who were cloth merchants; so the trade or business implied a person of large brain and strong grasp of details and good sagacity. It was also usually very profitable, so that clothiers were very often more wealthy than the gentry, as well as more intelligent and virtuous.

We have no records of the marriage or marriages of William Merriam, nor of the births of his children, the records of many parishes in the region about Hadlow having been examined fruitlessly; still there is reason to hope that some parish not yet searched may prove to have been the family home while the man was passing along his early manhood and bringing up his family.

In the same way the ancestry of the man is still not really established, although the records given in the Appendix furnish some grounds for constructing a pedigree.[1]

Taking the data which we have, then, we may notice the region where the cradle of the American family has been found.

TUDELEY, where the family was found in 1598, and where Joseph resided at the time of his father's death, is a little hamlet close by the town of Tonbridge and only a short distance from the famous watering-place of Tunbridge Wells; indeed, the medicinal waters come out through the rocks here as they do at the celebrated town. There are no suggestions at present of any former business of importance. A clothier living at this point would have to travel a long way about to gather much cloth, but that may have been the manner of the sixteenth and seventeeth centuries. To-day hop-growing and strawberry-raising occupy the people more than sheep-keeping, and there are no hand looms at work now.

[1] See second pedigree table ante. William, Jr., if the child bapt. at Goudhurst, May 11, 1564, would be 71 in 1635.

SEVENOAKS, where William and Sara sold land in 1614, is half a dozen miles northwest from Tonbridge, situated on the ridge of sand-hills which divide the county into the Upland and the Weald; it is airy and healthful, with fine views of the country, is a market town, and the seat of famous schools. Several families of distinction have their seats in the vicinity.

GOUDHURST, in which William owned land, is 4 miles northwest from Cranbrook, 5 south from Marden station on the Southeastern Railway, and 43 from London. Most of the town is situated on a fine ridge, 419 feet above sea-level, commanding a broad prospect. Has long been a prosperous farming town.

YALDING, another place where the family owned property, is on low ground near the confluence of the Beult and Teise with the navigable Medway, and is often swept by the waters in wet seasons; has a railroad station a mile from the village toward Tonbridge; is one of the most extensive hop-growing districts of Kent in these days; was a quiet agricultural region in the period we are studying.

HADLOW, the family home when the precious will which connects old and New England together for this family was made, is 4 miles northeast of Tonbridge, and thus very near Tudeley. It lies in the Weald and has no special local attractions, except Hadlow Castle, whose elegant mansion and lofty tower are very interesting and quite put its warlike features out of mind. Fruit, wheat, hops, and the sheep industry in a small way occupy the people. The country is beautiful and homelike.

The following will was first discovered in modern times by the late William Sumner Appleton, Esq., of Boston, whose connection with the family is shown in No. 19. We reprint it from the pages of Mr. Charles Pierce Merriam's Collections, and add a portion of the will of a brother-in-law (whatever that may have meant) of William Merriam, from the same source.

SECOND GENERATION

JOSEPH[2] (William[1]), eldest of the sons mentioned in the father's will, and the only one through whom the family name has descended, was probably born in the county of Kent, about the year 1600. He married Sara, daughter of John and (probably) Frances (Jefferie) Goldstone, whose brother was a resident of the town of Tonbridge, near by the home of Joseph and that of his father at the period of the emigration.

Robert Goldston of Tonbridge, in the county of Kent, in his will dated 10 April, 1637, proved the 16th of May, made the following bequests to this family.

"To Sara the wife of Joseph Merryam of Tewdly, Clothier, my sister, Ten shillings . . . and to Hanna Mirriam my goddaughter the daughter of the said Joseph one paire of fine sheets."

"I give & bequeath unto Willia, Sara Joseph Thomas Elizabeth and Hannah the six children of the said Joseph Mirriam by the said Sara his now wife to ether of them the like some of Six pound apeece to be paid them likewise within five yeares next after my decease."

The number of these children affords a clue to the length of time which had elapsed since Joseph's marriage, from which we may safely infer that the couple were married about the year 1623. This would suggest that Joseph may have been born about the year 1600. In the same way we get ground for estimating the births of the children in the years 1624, 1626, 1628, 1630, 1632, and 1636. But this is given as simple inference, not as history.

We know that Joseph had learned and entered on the business which his father had followed, for Robert Goldstone's will gives him the title "clothier," which is evidence of an unquestionable sort. This business had put him in possession of good means for the venture on a voyage to New England, and gave him a good start here. But it would necessarily give him a great deal of work in the line of collections, settlements, sales, and shipments. With so much property and such excellent business experience, it is not strange that he joined with others in chartering a vessel and taking freight and passengers to help pay the expenses of the voyage. The particulars of his venture are many of them brought out in connection with lawsuits between the partners. And the Note-book of the lawyer, Thomas Lechford, who was doing a notarial business in Boston in those years, contains abstracts of the papers which we present below.

Thomas Rucke of Charlestown in New England planter Plt.
William Hatch of Scituate in New England planter Defdt.

To the Governor & assistants of the Jurisdiction of New Plymouth in New England humbly complayning showeth unto yor Worshipps Thomas Rucke of Charlestowne in New England planter that whereas this Complt and one Joseph Meriam of Concord in New England Planter Came joynt undertakers in the shipp Castle of London wch arrived at the port of Charlestowne in the moneth of July Anno Dvi 1638. And one the said William Hatch was also undertaker with them and undertook by agreement to manage as a steward all their joynt businesse of undertaking and concerning every mans passage and all passengers goods that came in the said shipp and to take notice and keepe account how much every passengers goods and how much the severall undertakers owne goods were in manage and what every one of the said passengers and undertakers were to pay for their severall passage & goods and to deliver to every of the said undertakers and passengers their severall allowance of victualls & to cause that all the Caske vessells rundletts & provisions layd in for store and left at the said shipps arrival in New England aforesaid should be equally divided to the said undertakers parte and part alike, for wch stewardship the said William Hatch was allowed by the said Complt & Joseph Meriam the summe of 30 li and other profitts to the value of 20 li more in all 50 li.

Rucke avers that Hatch had already settled with Meriam and quotes the following memorandum which he had seen in "a little paper booke of the said Joseph Meriams":

"July 13th 1638. One after pt of the profitts of the freight of the Castle and of provisions left in my hands comes unto wch I doe owe unto Joseph Meriam 15 l 14 s. William Hatch."

New Plymouth in New England 3 Sept 1639
In the Court There

Joseph Meriam of Concord in New England Plf } In an action of tres-William Hatch of Scituate in New England Deft } pass upon the case.

The Plt complayneth against the defendt that whereas the defendt heretofore that is to say in the moneth of Aprill in the fourteenth yeare of the raigne of our soveraigne Lord Charles now King of England the defndt was indebted unto the plt the summe of thirty and five pounds wch he received of Robert Meriam for the Plts use and on his behalf which the defendt promised to pay when he should be required the same and the Defendt did afterwards indeed pay unto the Plt the summe of thirty pounds thereof. And whereas the Pltiff and Defendt upon the thirteenth day of July in the fourteenth yeare aforesaid did account together for divers moneys due from the one to the other & the Defendt was then found in arrearages to the plt the summe of fifteene pounds and fourteen shillings wch then also he promised to pay unto the plt when he should be required the same and the defendt did afterwards indeed pay unto the plt the summe of ten pounds thereof Notwithstanding the aforesaid defendt . . . refused and doth refuse to pay the balance etc. therefore this suit was brought.

The papers in the case were sent to Plymouth Court with a letter from Gov. Winthrop to Gov. Bradford, asking that justice be done between the parties, 22(6), 1639.

Joseph made his home in Concord, having a comfortable homestead for a "planter." He was soon received to the church, and, in accordance with the method of the time, was admitted to the freemanship or citizenship of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay on the 14th of the first month, March, 1638–9, nine months after his arrival.

His life in the colony was brief. He died on the first day of January (1(11), 1640–1, leaving a will which shows his business-like habits and his kindly thought for the welfare of others.

His oldest son William was not yet of age. The expected child had provision made for his support. Two of the foremost citizens of the little town and his brother Robert were charged with the duty of overseeing the carrying out of his plans for his loved ones.

THE WILL OF JOSEPH MERRIAM

The 29th of the 10th month in the yeare of or Lord 1640. The last will & Testament of Joseph Miriam of Concord.

I Joseph Miriam of Concord being weake in bodie but blessed be God of good memory & sence inwardly do comit my soule to God in Jesus Christ & my body to the earth from whence it came.

Item I give & bequeath to Sarah my wife all my whole estate towards and for the bringing up of all my children; & I do give to the said Sarah my wife power and authority to sell my house that I now dwell in if God shall offer such an opportunity it being larger and bigger than she shall stand in need of: and that the overplus of providing a lesse house shalbe disposed in some way for the good & benefit of my wife & children: And my mind & will is that my wife shall have the bringing up of all my children untill they come to the age of one and twenty yeares the sonns & the daughters either at that time or the day of marriage: & my will & mind is that when my eldest child shall come to the age of one & twenty yeares, then my estate shalbe prised & the said Sarah my wife shall have the third part of my estate at that time in possession, whether augmneted or diminished, according as God hath blessed it: & my sonns shall have a double portion with my daughters and according as my children come to age, I meane my sonns to one & twenty and my daughters either at that age or at the day of marriage: they shall receive theire portions according to the proportion of estate at that time when each of them shall come to age or as aforesaid And my will & mind is that if the said Sarah my wife shall marry againe that then my estate shall be prised: & valued & the said Sarah my wife shall have the third wholely to her selfe; the rest of my estate shalbe for my children, & the increase of that shalbe for the bringing of them up untill my sonne William shall come to one & twenty yeares, & then he shall have his portion as aforesaid: & then the rest of my estate both principall & increase shalbe preserved for my other children I conceiving they then being sufficient to live of themselves: except it be in case of sicknes or infirmity; wch then according to any of theire necessities shalbe supply made out of the stock undivided.

And furder my will & mind is, that if my wife be with child; that then none of my children shall have any increase of my stock preserved for them, but according as they come to age they shall receive theire portions as aforesaid: & the increase of the stock still undivided shall go for the bringing up of the yonge one:

And my mind & will is to make my wife my whole executor & with her my trusty & wellbeloved brethren Mr Thomas Flint, Simon Willard, Robert Miriam, whom I humbly intreate & put in trust to take care & oversee & give counsel to my wife about my estate & children and theire affaires: & especially my wife shall not sell my house or any accommodations without theire councell & approbation or the major part of them.

Proved 26 October, 1642.

The widow Sara married second, Lieut. Joseph Wheeler, of Concord. The three sons, William, Joseph, and John, joined in a quitclaim deed of any rights they might be supposed to have in the estate of Joseph Wheeler, "their father-in-law" (or stepfather as we now say), April 17, 1667. Sarah, "wife of Lift. Joseph Wheeler," died March 12, 1670–1.

GEORGE[2] (William[1]), born in England, date and place not yet learned, but not far from the year 1603; married at Tunbridge, Kent, 16 October, 1627, Susan (Susanna) Raven, and resided there till 1637, certainly, perhaps till the time of his removal to New England. The first trace of his presence in this country is after the death of Joseph. He was admitted to freemanship 2 June, 1641, and must have been here some little time before to become a member of the church, which was then a prerequisite to freemanship; but the fact that he was not one of the overseers of Joseph's will looks as if he was not in the plantation at that date.

Among the " Feet of Fines " or deeds of land in the county of Kent, A.D. 1638, Easter term, Charles I., is a conveyance by " George Mirriam and Susanna his wife " of " Two messuages, two barns, two gardens, two orchards, and six acres of land in Tewdley, co. Kent," to " Anne Towne, widow."

He made his home in Concord, where several children were born in addition to those registered at Tunbridge. Death had invaded the ranks, however,. and we find names repeated. He died 29 December, 1675, leaving the following will:

unto William Hatch one of the undertakers in the ship called the Castle of London, for her voyage to New England that yeare, in the Masters Roundhouse aboard the said ship while she was in the River of Thames the summe of thirty and five pounds of lawfull money of England in the behalfe of Joseph Meriam brother of this Deponent, etc. [Lechford's Notebook, 92.]

He came to New England in 1638, and entered into the life of the new country with energy and character. Resided a short time in Charlestown, where he had a house and warehouse, woodland, marsh, and cow commons in 1638, but soon removed to Concord. He joined the church; was made a freeman 13 March, 1638–9; was chosen deacon and filled the office with credit, and also served the town acceptably as clerk and representative to the General Court. Had no children.

He married Mary, daughter of Edmund Sheafe, of Cranbrook, co. Kent, who was baptized there 26 Sept., 1620. He died in Concord 15 Feb., 1682. She died 22 July, 1693, "aged 72 years," says her gravestone. Each left a will full of interest to our readers, which we give below.

WILLIAM[3] (Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in England, probably at Tewdley, in the county of Kent, about 1624; came as a boy to Concord, Mass., and entered into the life of the new plantation. Joined the church, and was made a freeman of the colony, May 2, 1649. He was one of the witnesses to the will of Joseph How 24 (2), 1651. The "goodman Merriam," who owned a lot of land in Hampton, N. H., May 2, 1655, may be — we may say must be — this man; but there is no evidence that he resided there. He had already settled at Lynn, where he married first Elizabeth, daughter of Allen Breed. Her father gave them, June 26, 1666, a good portion, 200 acres of farm land, 20 acres of meadow, and 10 acres of salt marsh, all in Lynn, in the southern part, now called by the ancient name Saugus. He married second, Oct. 11, 1676, Anna Jones, who died July 29, 1677. He married third, Sarah ———, who survived him.

He served as a trooper in King Philip's War, enrolled Feb. 29, 1675–6, in Capt. George Curwin's company, and received 4–10*s*. for his services.

He died in 1689; was buried 22 May, 1689.

An Invotary of the Estate of William Merriam desesed aprised by we whose names are subscribed the 22th day of July 1689.

JOSEPH[3] (Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in England about 1629; grew up in Concord, Mass., but removed when adult to the neighboring town of Cambridge, the part called "The Farms," which afterward became the parish and town of Lexington. He was admitted to the church, and was made a freeman (or citizen), May 22, 1650. He married at Concord, July 12, 1653, Sarah, daughter of Dea. Gregory Stone, who made a bequest to her in his will, dated Nov. 22, 1672. He accumulated something of a property for the times, as appears from the inventory of his estate and from the subsequent division. He died 20 April, 1677, "aged 47," says the record on his gravestone, the oldest now extant in the ancient "Hill Burying Ground" in Concord. The widow died April 5, 1704.

The property remained undivided many years after his death, and was then distributed in a kindly and equitable manner. We quote a portion of the instrument in which all was definitely arranged, giving in full the opening part which relates to the mother.

JOHN[4] (William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Lynn, 25 April, 1671; married 23 May, 1694, Rebecca, daughter of Nathaniel and Rebecca (Marshall) Sharp. She died April 30, 1751. He lived in Lynn a score or more years after marriage, carrying on a farm. In 1713 he was employed by the town to teach a "Grammar School," i.e. one in which Latin was taught as well as the higher branches of study in English, and £10 "allowed" for his services, besides the sum of "2 pence per week for such as are taught to read, 3 pence per week for them that are sent to write and cipher, and 6 pence per wk. for them that are sent to learn Latin, to be paid by the parents and masters that send their children or servants as aforesaid." The position was a testimony to his education and capability.

Aug. 25, 1716, he sold land adjoining that of his brother Joseph in Lynn, being his homestead, and also a tract adjoining land of his brother William. Not far from this date he removed to Wallingford, Conn. (afterward Meriden), where he spent the rest of his days. His wife was received to the (Congregational) church, Sept. 27, 1730.

He purchased of John Prout, Nov. 3, 1716, for £305, 300 acres of land in Wallingford, commonly called and known by the name of the Counay Farm, lying and being in the Wilderness at a place commonly called "Pilgrims' Harbour," *

* "The small stream running through Meriden, just east of the R. R. station, is still called Harbor Brook; and my grandaunt said that there was a place called also 5 1-2 acres of Hoop land near said farm. He resided in that part of Wallingford afterward incorporated as Meriden.

He died Oct. 11, 1754.

JOSEPH[4] (Joseph,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Concord, 25 May, 1658; married Charity ———.

He resided in that part of Cambridge called "The Farms," and afterward the town of Lexington; was one of the subscribers to the first meeting-house in the parish. He owned land there before 1699, when he sold a tract to Samuel Stone. Was elected tithingman at a town meeting. He sold his homestead to Thomas Cutler, land and buildings, 6 acres, bounded with lands of Stephen Davis, Thomas Mead, and the Concord line. He died May 31, 1727. The estate was settled by the widow Charity, who rendered an inventory, July 25, 1727, the estate being appraised at £286: 19: 0. Benjamin Whittemore, of Concord, was surety on her bond of administration. She afterward married Andrew MacClure, of Oxford.

Children:

32. i. Joseph,[5] b. about 1717, being in his fifteenth year when requesting the appointment of Walter Fairfield as his guardian, Sept. 18, 1731.
ii. Sarah, b. about 1726, being in her tenth year when her guardian was appointed Aug. 11, 1735.

JOHN[4] (Joseph,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in Concord, Aug. 30, 1662; married Nov. 14, 1688, Mary Wheeler, of Concord. She survived him, and died Dec. 20, 1745, aged 75.

He removed to Lexington; was one of the original members of the church there in 1696, and chosen deacon; frequently represented the church in ecclesiastical councils. Was a prominent citizen, assessor, selectman, and in other positions of trust. He acquired large amounts of land in various towns. He sold to his son John 56 acres of land on Long Pond in Littleton by Deacon Wheeler's lot, and 6 acres of meadow in the east corner of Plain Meadow, July 18, 1722, his wife Mary signing the deed, and John and Ebenezer M. witnessing it.

Worcester, March 16, 1714. By order of the Honour Comittee laid out to John Barron in the right of John Miriam a thirty acre Lott at Worcester with rights in comon to sd 30 acres granted by Sd Comittee may 20i 1714 to John Miriam lying on the north side of Concord road near Burnt coat plain on and joyning to Indian Hill: bounded East by land laid out to Benjn Barron South by land laid out to Thomas and Ichabod Brown and undivided land: north by land laid out to Benjn Flecher West by comon land near mill brook & signified in the platt.

Surveyed by D. Haynes. [Worcester Proprietors Records.]

He died May 21, 1727. The son John wrote a note from Littleton, requesting the appointment of " some of his younger brothers " to administer on the estate, June 7, 1727. The Court appointed Jonas Meriam, housewright, and Benjamin M., blacksmith, June 10, 1727. The widow Mary, her sons, John and Benjamin, and Mr. Joseph Miriam and her daughters Lydia and Ruth, with Phillip Russell (who appears as the husband of a daughter), joined, Nov. 18, 1728, in an indorsement of Jonas's administration. The Inventory specified " 58 acres of land lying upon both sides of the Road that leads down to the Meetinghouse; " 7 acres in Watertown; 4 1-2 acres in Weston; 24 acres in Littleton; other tracts of land, and a good personal estate. Division was made by a committee, Sept. 2, 1728, " Joseph Miriam " signing clearly as the guardian of Joshua, William, and Amos. He was called Mr. in the probate papers.

JOHN[4] (John,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in Concord, Sept. 3, 1666, married first, July 22, 1691, Sarah Wheeler. She died Aug. 2, 1692, and he married second, Feb. 16, 1693, Sarah, daughter of Benjamin Spaulding, of Chelmsford.

He was made freeman, March 22, 1690; was a lieutenant; lived at Concord, afterward at Littleton. There he was a town officer at times; died Nov. 30, 1748.

John Meriam, "of Concord, alias Littleton," and "formerly of Concord, now of Littleton," sold land "at Nasheby some years past belonging to Concord, now to Littleton," April 7, 1732, and land in the easterly part of Concord, with house and barn, bounded by lands of Joseph Meriam and Nathaniel Ball and the road leading to Billerica, also land rights in Acton, his wife Sarah signing with him, Feb. 24, 1736–7.

Child:

45. John, b. July 26, 1692.

NATHANIEL[4] (John,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in Concord, Dec. 10, 1672; married Nov. 18, 1701, Mary Taylor; lived at Concord, and afterward at Bedford. Was deacon and an honored town officer in Bedford. Died Dec. 11, 1738. He made his will Oct. 18, 1738, and it was proved Jan. 22, 1738–9. He made bequests to his wife Mary, son John, grandsons John Meriam and Francis Wheeler, granddaughters Rhoda and Miriam Wheeler, to "Deborah Davis, whom I brought up," and £6 to the Church of Bedford. The widow died May 19, 1764.

JOSEPH[4] (John,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in Concord, Aug. 20, 1677; married March 24, 1705, Dorothy, daughter of Noah Brooks, of Concord, born Oct. 18, 1685.

He was a locksmith; resided in Concord. Joseph and Ebenezer Meriam, of Concord, joined, June 9, 1726, with James Taylor in a quitclaim deed of their rights of inheritance in lands which had been owned by the late James Taylor, and which Nathaniel Stow was then conveying. [Mdx. Deeds, 26, 47.] Joseph sold a freehold right and one-third of an acre of land in the Village or Town New Grant contained by Stow line, and other lands, June 5, 1732. He made deeds of gift to his sons: to Nathan the homestead, April 3, 1747; to Josiah other lands; also gave the latter life use of one-half of the shop and tools, — but Josiah must give first offer of sale to his brother Nathan if he desired to sell.

March 19, 1727, he joined with other Concord men in buying of the Indians land at Grafton (the Hasanamisco purchase). This he transferred to his son Joseph, who went there and grew up with the town.

The widow made her will Dec. 18, 1757, bequeathing to her daughters Dorothy, wife of Joseph Adams, and Mary, wife of Simon Hunt, and to her sons Joseph, of Grafton, Samuel, Nathan, and Josiah.

Children:

i. Dorothy,[5] b. April 5, 1706; m. Nov. 10, 1736 (as his second wife), Joseph Adams, of Concord. She d. July 25, 1791.

Children:

A grandchild of this couple, Mr. William Sumner Appleton, long one of the most eminent members of the N. E. Hist. Gen. Society, made investigations in England which resulted in his discovering the will of William Merriam, of Hadlow, co. Kent, the founder of the American line. He also wrought out and published the genealogy of the first four generations of the family with great care, and thus deserves a high place in the regard of all Merriams.

4. Bethiah Adams, b. June 3, 1744; d. Sept. 30, 1753.
5. Mercy Adams, b. Jan. 14, 1747; m. (1) April 21, 1768, Benjamin Pollard; m. (2) Jonas Whiting; she d. in Norway, Me., Aug. 12, 1815.

SAMUEL[4] (Samuel,[3] George,[2] William[1]), born in Concord, Oct. 17, 1679; married May 12, 1708, Abiel Lee.

He resided in Concord; was a deacon and a captain in the militia. He sold, Oct. 24, 1733, a tract of land in Acton, part of which was owned by the heirs of Samuel Stratton, of Concord. Sold May 23, 1734, land in Concord village, whereon his father, Samuel Meriam, had formerly lived. Made a deed of gift to John Farrar, April 20, 1744.

His only child died in 1736, so this branch of the family, the line of George, second son of William,[1] came to an end. His wife died Aug. 29, 1756, aged 72.

He died June 1, 1764. In his will, dated June 9, 1763, proved Jan. 6, 1764, he bequeathed to the heirs of his sisters, Sarah Gates, of Harvard; Susannah Fox, of Concord; Hannah Fox, of Dracut; Sarah Wheeler, of Concord; and Abigail Marble, of Stow. He also made bequests to Samuel, John, and Joseph, sons of his deceased kinsman, John Farrar; to widows Joanna Farrar and Susannah Soper, the latter then living with him; to Mary Burroughs and Mary Stearns. John Meriam, of Sudbury, and Joseph Farrar were the executors of the will.

Child:

Samuel,[5] b. June 30, 1712; d. unm. March 10, 1736.

EBENEZER[5] (Joseph,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Lynn, Feb. 11, 1685; married first, Feb. 13, 1709–10, Jerusha, daughter of Daniel and Mary Berry, of Boston. After her death he married second, Elizabeth ———.

He was a housewright. He and Ezekiel Cheever were granted the privilege of building a mill on Saugus River, Oct. 8, 1722. He sold out to Cheever in 1729. This was the first mill on the river. In partnership with Thomas Berry, of Boston, he bought land in B. in 1716, which they divided a few months later. His home was near the lines of Boston and Malden. He sold land in Lynn while residing there in 1729 and 1731–2. He removed to Mendon a little later. Residing there, he sold land in Lynn, April 13, 1733, his wife, Jerusha, signing with him.

He was licensed to keep tavern in Mendon, Aug. 12, 1735; was elected one of the selectmen, assessors, etc., and was chosen to represent the town in the General Court in 1738 and 1739.

He died Dec. 4, 1753.

He signed his will, Oct. 20, 1753, and it was proved Feb. 6, 1754. He gave to his wife Elizabeth the use of one-third of his real estate during her life or widowhood, and the eastern half of the house from top to bottom, together with the pewter closet on the west side of the kitchen, and one-third part of the movable estate forever. To son Benjamin the remainder of the real and personal estate, except certain bequests. To daughters Rebecca Breed, Elizabeth Lyon, and Lydia Penniman, twenty pounds apiece; to Joanna and Sarah Rhoads, children of deceased daughter Athelred Rhoads, two pounds apiece at the age of eighteen; to granddaughter, Hannah, daughter of deceased daughter, Hannah Lovett, forty shillings, at the age of eighteen; to Charles and Dan Aldrich, sons of deceased daughter Mary Aldrich, ten pounds apiece at the age of twenty-one; to grandson Ichabod Robbinson, son of daughter Ruth Robbinson, deceased, forty shillings at the age of twenty-one. Son Benjamin, executor. MATTHEW[6] (Nathaniel,[5] John,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Wallingford, Ct., Jan. 25, 1738; married first, at Milton in 1766, Elizabeth, daughter of Oxenbridge Thatcher, Jr., of Boston. She was born April 1, 1743, and died about 1790. He married second, Jan. 15, 1791, Mrs. Bethiah Evans, of Boston.

He was graduated at Yale College, A.B. 1759; received the degree of A. M. from Harvard in 1765; was ordained pastor of the Congregational church at South Berwick (Maine), Sept. 25, 1765, and continued in office till his death in January 18, 1797.

Mr. James Sheldon Merriam has a little record-book kept by Rev. Matthew Merriam in which he noted particularly the "Presents" made to him by his parishioners from Nov. 17, 1778 to Jan. 18, 1797, and a list of purchases of meat and grain for a part of that time. All manner of supplies for table and stable are mentioned among the gifts, from a bushel of oats to a sucking pig, or a sparerib or sirloin for roasting, and a quart of brandy for sickness (past or future).

There are no portions of the record quite worth transcribing here, but the names and amounts of donation will be of great value to the student of Berwick family history. The book was given to J. S. M. by the widow of George O. Merriam, a grandson of the parson.

He was a devoted, faithful, capable pastor and preacher. It is related that, on the Sabbath after news had been received of the surrender of Cornwallis, Parson Merriam preached a patriotic and thankful sermon from the text, "Alleluia! For the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth." [Rev. xix. 6.]

A descendant has furnished us the following lines as an illustration of the wit and rhythm of his ancestor. They were written on a sort of " family tree " that has come down through several generations.

ON LIFE

BY WILLIAM BELLAMY MERRIAM

" Our life is somewhat like a winter's day;
Some only stop for breakfast, then away.
Others wait dinner and depart full fed;
The longest age but sups and goes to bed.
Large is his debt who lingers out the day;
Who goes the soonest has the least to pay."

JOSEPH[7] (Timothy,[6] Joseph,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in Grafton, Oct. 15, 1797; married in Madison, Ohio, Jan. 25, 1826, Emeline Bidwell, formerly of Farmington, Conn., born about 1800. Her brother, Rev. W. H. Bidwell, was very eminent as a preacher, editor, and publisher, being identified with the National Preacher, Eclectic Magazine, New York Evangelist, and other periodicals of high standing. Another brother, Oliver Bidwell, was publisher of maps of foreign countries where American missionaries were at work.

She was every way a helpmeet of her husband in his pioneer ministerial work.

He was graduated at Brown University in 1819, and at Andover Theological Seminary in 1822; travelled to Richmond, Va., for missionary service in a one-horse wagon, and labored over a year; then went West, and was ordained pastor of the Congregational church at Randolph, Ohio, Jan. 7, 1824. He continued in the pastorate sixty-four years, though the people gave him an assistant for parts of the work in the later years.

He went into a region of primitive conditions. When prayer-meetings were held at his house, people would bring torches made of shagbark hickory, and light them at the open fireplace as they were starting for home, so as to see their way through the woods. Forty annual "donation parties" were held at his parsonage, and were occasions of much joy to pastor and people. He endeared himself to his flock by self-denying labors, but refused to take wine even at weddings, and in other ways led off in progressive, ethical, and moral movements. Mrs. Meriam was a remarkable woman, of great energy and good judgment, very efficient as a pastor's wife. She received her education at Burton, Ohio, not ashamed to do housework in the family of the principal of the school to pay for her board. At eighteen she taught a large day-school; and, seeing the community destitute of religious teaching, she instituted and carried on a Sabbath school of seventy pupils, although she had never seen a school of the kind.

Mr. Meriam's pastorate was the longest in the United States over one church, on record up to that time, it is believed. He died May 7, 1888.

ADOLPHUS [7] (Joseph,[6] Josiah,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in Concord, Aug. 23, 1820;* married Jan. 19, 1846, Caroline, daughter of John and Kezia (Batcheller) McKinstry, born at Southbridge, Aug. 22, 1825, died March 16, 1898.

He was brought up on a farm in Concord, and, beside the "district schools," had one term at Framingham Academy. When he was seventeen years old he went to Southbridge, and entered the office of the Hamilton Woollen Company, in which his older brother Charles was interested. He remained in S. twelve years, till he learned the business thoroughly; then purchased a small mill at Springfield, Vt., which he operated for four years. Returning to Southbridge, he entered into partnership with Joshua and Gayton Ballard in woollen manufacture. In 1864 he removed to South Framingham, which was thenceforward his home. He was associated with others in mills at Milbury, Cordaville, Watertown, and Southbridge, and was a director and president of the American Powder Company, and president of the Gunpowder Trade Association of the United States. He was an earnest temperance man, was town assessor and selectman at Southbridge, active in filling the town quota of troops, and in advocating the Federal cause during the Rebellion. He was president of the National Bank, and took the helm of the savings-bank in an hour of its embarrassment, and aided much in restoring it to a high position. He was liberal in religion; a man of plain and unostentatious manners, always genial and approachable, a sagacious and helpful adviser. [See Hurd's Hist. Mdx. Co.]

He died Nov. 27, 1888.

Children:

i. Lucy,[8] b. at Southbridge, May 27, 1849; m. Jan. 22, 1873, Leonard B., son of John and Mary Anna Adams, of Boston.

DAN [8] (Ebenezer,[7] Benjamin,[6] Ebenezer,[5] Joseph,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in Mendon, Sept. 21, 1771; married Feb. 28, 1802, Thirza, daughter of Elijah and Azubah (Ross) Clapp, born in Brookfield, May 19, 1781, died in Springfield, July 14, 1871, aged 90 years, 1 month, 28 days.

She was in the sixth generation from Dea. Edward Clapp, a native of Salcombe Regis, County Devon, England, who came to Dorchester in 1633 to join his brother, Capt. Roger Clapp, and was a man highly esteemed.

Dan Merriam spent his youth in Paxton until after his father's death. He and his brother George attended school at Leicester, walking the three miles morning and evening, boarding at home. He taught school two winters at Westmoreland. He then went to Whitestown, N. Y. With a companion he made a cruise out into the wilderness, going by what is now the city of Buffalo, along the border of the lake, westward. Returning, they took up land in what is now Hamilton, N. Y., and did something in clearing and farming. He came back to Massachusetts in 1798, and entered into partnership with his brother Ebenezer in the publication of The Political Repository or Farmers' Journal. The first number was issued " The First Wednesday of August, 1798." Three hundred subscribers constituted their hope of gain. Three years brought this venture to an end, but they had meantime established themselves in the business of book publishing and selling, and this they continued with increased force. They printed 10,000 copies of Perry's Dictionary in 1801, and cleared a good sum thereby. On the death of their brother George, Dan was obliged to remove to Worcester to do the duties of executor, and remained there some time, continuing in the Brookfield firm. They printed an edition of the New Testament, one of Watts's and Select Hymns, Webster's Spelling-book, the Bible, and other books. Owing to the very defective methods of doing business at the period, they suffered many inconveniences from long credits, barter, etc., but kept on steadily. After returning to Brookfield to reside, Dan gave his time up to the farm chiefly. His system gave way too early by reason of the great strains to which he had been subject, and he died Nov. 21, 1823, at the age of 52.

He was intelligent for the times, much interested in improvements, in art and science; taught his children to work, and had them do their tasks before they played, no less careful of their characters and education than of the training which would make them capable of self-support, and of accomplishing good work in life.

The boys began to learn the printing trade at twelve, along with the apprentices of the firm. The girls became teachers in "district schools" and seminaries. The mother was a woman of great efficiency in a quiet way; took boarders after her husband's death. She and her daughters went to Troy, N. Y., and carried on a boarding-school from 1845 till 1851.

Children, all but the two eldest born at West Brookfield:

616. i. George,[9] b. at Worcester Jan. 19, 1803.
ii. Dorothy Sumner, b. at Paxton, Nov. 22, 1804; d. at Springfield, unm. Feb. 20, 1874.

GEORGE [8] (Ebenezer,[7] Benjamin,[6] Ebenezer,[5] Joseph,[4] William.[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born July 8, 1773; married in Shrewsbury, Dec. 22, 1796, Dorothy, daughter of Rev. Dr. Joseph and Lucy (Williams) Sumner.

He was apprenticed to a bookbinder by the name of Burns, a Southerner, in the employ of Isaiah Thomas, the printer, in Worcester. Carried on a bookstore and bindery there. He died Aug. 22, 1802. The widow died March 9, 1841, aged 63.

EBENEZER [8] (Ebenezer,[7] Benjamin,[6] Ebenezer,[5] Joseph,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in Leicester, Dec. 15, 1777; married first, Nov. 28, 1799, Sarah Hitchcock. She died Jan. 9, 1805. He married second, March 29, 1814, Mary Cutler, who survived him and died Nov. 4, 1861, aged 82 years, 4 months, 22 days.

On attaining his majority, he worked a few months in Boston, then went to West Brookfield, and established a printing and book-binding business in partnership with his brother Dan. [See article above.] He thus describes the stock with which they began business:

"An old press; a font of Long Primer type and a small font of Pica, all worn down to the first nick, as the saying is; cuts for John Rogers's Primer; one iron composing stick; two wooden ones; a wooden imposing stone; two letter racks; brass rules made of wood for column rules; two chases and a few small galleys, all in honorable standing, if age would make them so."

But with industry, fidelity to the details and obligations of their business, character, and perseverance, they gained "a good name" and reasonable success.

He died at West Brookfield, Oct. 1, 1858.

Children:

i. Sarah Hitchcock,[9] b. Feb. 10, 1801; m. Doctor Royce; no children.

ELA [8] (Nathaniel,[7] Nathaniel,[6] Nathaniel,[5] John,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in the parish of Meriden, in the town of Wallingford, Conn., Sept. 25, 1794; married Sept. 14, 1819, Lydia, youngest daughter of James and Mary (Cheeseborough, Lord) Sheldon, of Remsen, N. Y., born Aug. 18, 1800, died Oct. 14, 1886.

In 1815 Mr. Merriam bought a farm adjoining his father's in Leyden, N. Y., and a few years later altered the old house into the stately residence known as Locust Grove. He moved into the house in 1821, and passed the rest of his life there. His children were all born under its roof. Besides the management of his large farm, of which he was always proud, he owned (in connection with his brother-in-law, Elisha Backus, of Utica, and Samuel Buckley, of Watertown, N. Y.) the line of stage-coaches which carried the United States mails from Utica to Sacketts Harbor from 1824 till about 1850, when the railroad was built north from Boonville. He called the attention of the people of the county to plank roads and other public improvements, and helped to secure them. He was a man of varied business interests; did much for the improvement of the breeds of horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, and poultry. His house stood between two large orchards locally famous for the abundance and excellence of the best grafted apples of the county. He was frequently president of the Lewis County Agricultural Society, and rarely absent from the State fairs as well. He never held any political office, saying that the only office in the gift of the people which he would not refuse was that of "Pathmaster," — overseer of the public roads. He was a General of militia.

He lived to see the county — the Black River Valley — pass from a wilderness, almost without roads, a wilderness of stumps, mud-holes, and corduroys, to well-cultivated fields, the best of meadows, with comfortable homes, good roads, canals and boats and railroads; in the obtaining of all this he had taken a prominent part.

One of his fields was known as "The Parade Lot," where for many years the General Trainings of the militia, in which he was the commanding officer, were annually held. He was at Sacketts Harbor as a soldier in the War of 1812.

He and his wife lived to celebrate their golden wedding, Sept. 14, 1869, every living child and grandchild present.

He died Nov. 11, 1873, at the old homestead.

HENRY [8] (Thomas,[7] Thomas,[6] William,[5] John,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Schaghticoke, N. Y., Dec. 2, 1802; married at Goshen, N. Y., Jan. 1, 1833, Ann Eliza, daughter of Isaac and Abigail (Tustin) Reeve, born there May 3, 1810, died Sept. 1, 1901. Her grandfather, Col. Benjamin Tustin, was a Revolutionary officer, and was killed in the battle of Minnisink in 1779.

Henry Merriam, at the age of thirteen, upon the death of his father, went to Litchfield, Conn., and for six years resided with his uncle, Noah Guernsey.

For three years he engaged in sale of "Yankee notions," with headquarters at Elizabethtown, N. J. In 1825 he went to Goshen, N. Y., establishing himself with the late John J. Smith, in the manufacture of tinware. After twenty-four years (1849) they opened a general hardware store, and conducted a large and successful business until 1869, when Mr. Merriam retired. While his business life was successful, he never at any time forgot the full duty of a citizen, and was a liberal contributor to all local, worthy objects, and a promoter of the best interests of society in morality and religion. For some twenty years he was identified with the educational interests of Goshen as one of the Board of Trustees of Farmers' Hall Academy, and after the organization of the Goshen Bank in 1851 was for many years a director.

He was never solicitous of official position, and never held office except to serve as supervisor for one term.

LEWIS [8] (William,[7] Ebenezer,[6] Ebenezer,[5] John,[4] Joseph,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at New Salem, June 4, 1805; married at Houlton, Me., Feb. 22, 1834, Mary Ann Foss, born at Oromocto, N. B., March 29, 1813, died at Houlton, Me., May 3, 1880. He removed to Houlton, Me., about 1828, and resided there till after the death of his wife, when he removed to Spokane, Wash., the home of several of his children, and made that his home till his death, May 27, 1889.

Lewis Merriam was educated at New Salem Academy in the common English branches. While yet in his minority, he was employed as mail coach driver between Boston and Springfield. Later he learned watch-making in Boston, and established himself in that trade at Athol sometime before 1828.

A few years later, probably in 1833, when the Northeastern Boundary dispute became strenuous, he was attracted to Maine, and went "through the woods" from Bangor to Houlton, then a garrisoned military station. He was married there, and established his home on a farm adjoining that village, from which his children were able to attend the public schools and academy mainly during the winter terms.

He was a zealous advocate of manual training for children, and to him no home was complete without its workshop and tools of many trades. To this is mainly due the fact that all of his sons had become

RUFUS NICHOLS[8] (Samuel,[7] James,[6] Joshua,[5] John,[4] Joseph,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Oxford, Jan. 14, 1818; married first, at Worcester, April 12, 1849, Emily, daughter of John and Prudence Davis Tatman, born March 18, 1828, died June 21, 1863. He married second, June 25, 1865, Mrs. Sarah T. Sullivan, a sister of his first wife, born Jan. 15, 1826.

He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1844; M. A. in 1847; made his home at Oxford, and was a carpenter, working there and in the vicinity; removed to Worcester in 1853; became a manufacturer of wood-working machinery. Was three years on the school board. He took a deep interest in the family history, and gathered a good deal of information about it, a portion of which he embodied in a paper, which he read before the Worcester Society of Antiquity (of which he was a member), which was afterward printed in pamphlet form in 1888, entitled "Some Meriams." He gave by his correspondence, and through his paper, a stimulus to the family's concern for a genealogy, being himself very much assisted in his researches by Mr. James Sheldon Merriam, of New York City, whose more extensive labors have furnished such a large addition to this book. He maintained his intellectual and spiritual life at a high level, as is shown in the striking pamphlet, "Nuggets for Thought," printed for the author in 1892.

His only offspring dying before she reached her first year, he adopted the two children of his second wife by her former husband, who are, accordingly, duly enrolled here and in the next generation.

He was graduated from Harvard University in 1829; LL.B., 1831; A. M., 1834. Entered into the practice of law at Lowell. Had a suburban home at Tewksbury. He died Aug. 6, 1872.

He entered Harvard College fcom the Concord Academy, when nineteen years of age. When in College he taught in the public school for two years in Old Cambridge, afterward in the Cambridge Academy. After receiving his degree from the Law School, he entered upon the practice of the law in Lowell. In May, 1832, he was sent to Washington as delegate to the national convention of Republican Young Men. He was active and influential in establishing Public schools in Lowell, also in forwarding the interests of the Baptist church as a member of the Society. He was always much interesed in scientific agriculture, and in 1842 and 1843 was editor of the Boston Cultivator. From 1844–48 he was inspector of customs in Boston and he received a silver cup from the British North American Steam Navigation Co. for aid in distress. He afterward became absorbed in the "Wool Question;" and his papers in the N. Y. Journal of Commerce and the N. Y. Evening Post, and other journals, were widely read and influential on the tariff, being quoted as authoritative on the floor of Congress. He had a large stock and fruit farm of choice breeds and varieties, and was a constant contributor to the agricultural press of New England and New York. He was much interested in establishing the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and was in request as a forcible and eloquent speaker at the celebrations of New England State and county agricultural societies. His stock and fruit took many premiums and medals.

He was a man of strong personality, of warm affections, and great force of character; of indomitable will and perseverance. The late Dr. Nathan Allen, of Lowell, writes: "I had known [him] over thirty years. He had a strong mind, good common sense, decided and definite opinions of his own; fond of books; in advance of the day in his thoughts and opinions. I wish we had more of such men."

LEVI PARSONS [8] (Amos,[7] Amos,[6] Nathan,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Princeton, Sept. 1, 1829; married May 18, 1854, Martha Ann, daughter of Dea. Jesse and Catherine (Johnson) Pierce, born in Brunswick, Me., March 2, 1830. Her father was son of Nehemiah Pierce, of Monmouth, Me., and a descendant of Thomas Pierce, a pioneer at Charlestown, Mass., in 1634; her mother's grandfather, Col. Samuel Johnson, who commanded the 4th Massachusetts regiment in the Revolutionary War. Mr. Pierce died about the year 1844, and Mrs. Pierce had been living for a long time previous to the marriage of her daughter, next door to the Merriams, in High Street Square, Lowell; so the young people's acquaintance began at an early age.

Levi attended the grammar school and high school in Lowell until the age of fifteen, when he began his business life with a china and glass dealer in Lowell, and from that time on he was never an expense to his father. He was an honest, straightforward and energetic lad, and soon became chief assistant to his employer; remained with him until he retired from business and then entered the service of J. C. Ayer, of Lowell, for whom he travelled all over the United States several times, making contracts with the newspapers for advertisements.

On his marriage Mr. Merriam started in the china and glass business on his own account at Lewiston, Me., but this venture did not prove a success, and he entered the service, first of Van Heusen & Charles, of Albany, N. Y., where he remained about four years, and afterward of Burtis Brothers, of New York City, both of the firms being in the china and glass trade.

In November, 1863, Mr. Merriam went to Italy on a business venture, backed up by Mr. Burtis. The Italians at that time depended for their lighting on candles and oil lamps, and the enterprise in which Mr. Burtis and Mr. Merriam were engaged was to introduce into Italy American petroleum and American lamps.

Establishments were opened in several Italian cities, and the headquarters were at Genoa, where Mr. Merriam lived for nearly four years. During the latter part of his sojourn in Genoa, he held the appointment of American vice-consul in that city.

About the end of 1866 Mr. Merriam met several Americans who were forming a company for the introduction of condensed milk, then only in use in America, into Europe. The Anglo-Swiss Condensed Milk Company was formed, Mr. Merriam becoming one of the original directors and the company's agent in London.

In 1870 differences of opinion on the directorate caused a split, and Mr. Merriam and some of his colleagues formed a new company, the English Condensed Milk Company, of which he became managing director. The company had its factory at Aylesbury, in Buckinghamshire, and later a second one at Middlewich, in Cheshire, and offices in London, and had at first a prosperous career. After several years, however, manufacturing difficulties for which he was not responsible arose, and it was thought best to amalgamate the business with that of the Anglo-Swiss Company.

In this arrangement, however, there was no place for Mr. Merriam, who sacrificed his private interests out of regard for those of his friends who had shares in the company. He received some compensation, but this was small, in view of the fact that he had devoted ten of the best years of his life to the condensed milk business, and had by dint of hard work and in the face of great obstacles introduced and established the business in England.

At the age of forty-five he saw himself therefore obliged to make a fresh start in life; but, with the indomitable pluck and energy which never failed him, he threw himself into another new enterprise.

The material now generally known as celluloid was first made, but in a very crude way, by Alexander Parkes, of Birmingham, who patented his process in the year 1855. Parkes called his material Parkesine; but neither the material made by him nor that made by his successor, Daniel Spill, had the necessary characteristics to make them generally appreciated. In the meantime the brothers Hyatt had produced in America a material made upon Parkes's lines which they called celluloid, and which, owing to its quality, became much sought after. In 1875, just as Mr. Merriam had finished his connection with the condensed milk business, a representative of the celluloid company, who was also an acquaintance of Mr. Merriam, came to Europe, with the object of forming celluloid companies in England and France. This gentleman approached Mr. Merriam to join him in the formation of these companies, and the latter became for a short time one of the original directors of the Compagnie Française du Celluloid, and was to have been one of the directors of an English company, which, however, owing to the sudden death of the solicitor who became chiefly responsible for its flotation, never came to anything. Mr. Merriam thereupon associated himself with Daniel Spill, of Homerton, London, who in 1877 transferred his business to the British Xylonite Company, Limited, of which company Mr. Merriam became in 1879 joint, and in 1884 sole managing director. As managing director of the British Xylonite Company, Mr. Merriam had difficulties of every kind. The methods previously employed in the business had been unscientific, the machinery inadequate, and as a consequence the material at first made was far from perfect, and the few customers of the company were disgusted. In addition to this, the financial embarrassments of the company were for years very serious, and all these difficulties, added to the apathy of the British public in the presence of a new industry, made a combination of adverse circumstances with which few men would have struggled for ten years. But Mr. Merriam was a brave and sanguine man, who never in the darkest days lost faith in the ultimate success of the enterprise, and who labored incessantly to improve the company's methods and to develop its business.

In 1885 the company was within sight of its first dividend, when a disastrous fire stopped all thought of it for that year; but it earned a small profit in 1886, and declared its first dividend in 1887.

In the latter year, the premises at Homerton in London becoming too cramped for the extending business, the company bought a farm of 130 acres at Brantham in Suffolk; and Mr. Merriam devoted what proved to be the last years of his life to the foundation of a model factory and of a model village, which included about sixty houses for employees, with a school-house and a sports field. Later a tract of fifty acres was purchased at Hale End, in the suburbs of London, and another factory, model village, and office buildings erected there.

In September, 1888, Mr. Merriam contracted a severe chill while watching the construction of the cottages at Brantham. In October, he sufficiently recovered to go, accompanied by his wife and daughter, to Nervi in Italy. Here, however, complications ensued, and he became seriously ill, so that early in December his son in London was telegraphed for. On his arrival a family council was held, and as Mr. Merriam wished strongly to go home, it was decided to make the attempt in spite of the doctor's advice. The journey was successful. Mr. Merriam reached home, if anything, better than when he left Italy, but nevertheless, his time had come, and about two weeks later, on the second of January, 1889, he passed away very peacefully in the presence of his loved ones.

WILLIAM WARD[8] (William,[7] Amos,[6] Nathan,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Princeton, Sept. 15, 1830; married at Cambridge, Sept. 1, 1858, Susan, daughter of David and Susan Dimond, born in Boston in 1832.

He was graduated from Harvard College in 1855; during the time was active in Christian work among the poor in Cambridgeport, superintending the mission which later developed into Stearns Chapel, and culminated in the formation of Hope Church. He graduated at Andover Theological Seminary in 1858; spent a few months in a very successful pastoral work at Kensington, N. H., was ordained as a Congregational minister at Cambridge, Nov. 29, 1858, and sailed as a missionary to Turkey in January, 1859. His "erect" and thorough character and the ardent and devoted qualities of his bride gave promise of great usefulness, and they were welcomed to the work most cordially. Assigned to Phillipopolis, in European Turkey (Bulgaria), they rapidly acquired the language and showed unusual efficiency in all the varied work.

"He was the future man of Turkey in Europe," wrote Dr. Schaufler, of Constantinople, of him. " His faculty of gaining influence was great and copious, his executive ability great, his courage equal to any undertaking or any peril,— his cheerfulness inspiring others and sustaining himself. His whole missionary character is well typified by the seal of Calvin, a hand holding out a burning heart," says another.

But on the second day of July, 1862, as he and his wife and child were on their way home from the annual missionary meeting at Constantinople, the caravan was attacked by robbers, who shot him dead.

Mrs. Merriam refused to leave the body, and was spared, as was the infant daughter. The sorrow of his associates and parishioners and neighbors was unbounded; three of the four bandits who murdered him were arrested by the Turkish government, and on the person of one of them was found the revolver which Mr. Merriam had, but did not use, the charges being all found, rusted in. Mrs. Merriam steadily sunk under the terrible strain, and died July 25, 1862, following. A memorial sermon was preached at Prospect Street Church, Cambridge (First Evangelical Church of Cambridgeport), Sept. 14th, by the pastor, Rev. James O. Murray, in honor of the noble pair, so beloved for their life and work at home, so sacredly remembered now as members of "the noble army of martyrs."

Child:

Mary,[9] b. at Phillipopolis, Bulgaria, Aug. 27, 1861; brought up in the family of her father's brother, Mr. John Newton Merriam, in Cambridge; m. Nov. 27, 1884, Charles W. Coman, of Ohio; resided at Americus, O.; now at Pasadena, Cal.

GEORGE [9] (Dan,[8] Ebenezer,[7] Benjamin,[6] Ebenezer,[5] Joseph,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William [1]), born at Worcester, Jan. 19, 1803, was the oldest son of Dan and Thirza (Clapp). He married first, May, 1828, Abigail Willis, daughter of Benjamin and Hannah (Allen) Little, born in New Braintree, May 6, 1808; died Jan. 31, 1841. He married second, March 31, 1842, Mrs. Abby (Fiske) Spring, daughter of Rev. John and Elizabeth (Mellen) Fiske, and widow of George Spring. She was born Feb. 28, 1812, and died Oct. 14, 1875. After a boyhood of school and farm work, at the age of fifteen, he entered the printing-office of his father and uncle Ebenezer, as an apprentice. Five years later the death of his father threw upon him a heavy responsibility for his mother and seven younger children. In 1831 he began the book-selling business with his brother Charles in Springfield as G. & C. Merriam, and assiduous application brought growing success. They made a series of school readers, "The Child's Guide," "The Village Reader," etc. In 1847 the firm acquired the plates and copyright of Noah Webster's large dictionary. Later they bought his Speller and the dictionary Abridgments: and thenceforth they devoted themselves mainly to the Webster series, especially the "Unabridged," which, under their energetic pushing and a succession of scholarly revisions, acquired an unrivalled position among its class. A third brother, Homer, was added to the firm, and its prosperity was uninterrupted. George Merriam died at Springfield, June 22, 1880.

He was a man of active, wiry, and somewhat delicate physique, overtasked by hard work in early life. Mentally, he was alert, rapid, and direct; unspeculative, but going straight to the heart of practical matters; in business energetic, shrewd, with a high standard of honor, and a great faculty of "getting there." He had a union of simplicity with mother wit and unconscious humor, which gave a zest to his conversation. He had an active conscience, quick sensibility, and warm affection; a simple, unquestioning religious faith; and an innate and cultivated instinct for helpfulness in every direction. His chief enjoyment of his wealth — considerable, by the modest standards of his time — was in giving it away. Several of the benevolent societies, especially those of the Congregational body, were his habitual beneficiaries; and large contributions into their treasuries often came from the three brothers, under the name of "Unabridged." He assisted many young men in their education. He was prompt and liberal in responding to private appeals, and active and fertile in devising unasked kindnesses. Not unskilful with his pen, he did considerable journalistic work by proxy, paying some writer to advocate a good cause in the press. He was fond of printing and distributing cards and hand-bills with some pithy legend or maxim, his especial favorite being the "worthy Quaker," who, as he "went through life but once, and would not pass this way again," made it his habit as to any kind deed to "do it now." A constitutional shyness combined with absorption in business and strong domestic tastes to keep him out of public affairs, and the heart of his life was in his home.

His first family was shattered by rapid bereavements; within a few years wife and four sons passed away.

To his second family was given a long period of united happiness. Nine children and stepchildren (all as brothers and sisters alike) grew up harmoniously under the devoted care of the father and the genial love of the mother. He was especially resourceful in devising occupation and amusements for his children. It was a household of large hospitality, often the resort of ministers, missionaries, and other good workers; and one guest playfully named it "The Saints' Rest." The death of the wife and mother five years before his own brought a heavy shadow, which was beautifully lightened as from his own loneliness he turned to an even more active and fruitful helpfulness. The long hours of morning wakefulness, — specially irksome to so active a temperament, — were spent in devising kindnesses which the daylight hours were hardly long enough to fulfil. His always gentle and blameless nature took on a new beauty of self-forgetting devotion. He met the close of the earthly scene as peacefully as a child lies down to sleep. When the end came, the Springfield Republican spoke of him as "a citizen universally known and beloved, and our chief apostle of benevolence."

Children:

i. George Dan.,[10] b. in June, 1829; d. Feb. 7, 1832.
ii. John Fiske, b. in Aug., 1830; d. June 26, 1836.
iii. Charles Edward, b. in Nov., 1831; d. March 24, 1836.
iv. Hannah Little, b. Jan. 22, 1835; m. Dec. 27, 1859, Lucius Duncan Olmstead (son of Prof. Denison Olmstead, then of Chapel Hill College, afterward of Yale College, and his wife, Eliza Allyn), born at Chapel Hill, N. C., June 24, 1827. He spent his youth in New Haven and Hartford, Ct., but in early manhood removed to Chicago, Ill. He was agent for Illinois of some of the strongest fire and life insurance companies; was one of the founders of the New England Cong. Church of Chicago, the first treasurer of the Congregational Theological Seminary of that city, and a strong friend and helper of both institutions. He was a public-spirited citizen and a successful business man. His death, March 15, 1862, at the early age of thirty-four years, brought serious loss upon business and religious associates as well as upon his family. Mrs. Olmstead resides at Hartford, Ct.

viii. Edward Fiske, b. May 5, 1847; graduated at Yale University in 1870. He engaged with the publishing house of Houghton, Mifflin & Co. for awhile; afterward entered into his father's business. Was also editor and publisher, 1877–81, first in conjunction with Rev. Washington Gladden, then alone, of a monthly magazine, originally named Sunday Afternoon, and afterward Good Company. This magazine had a unique character, in its felicitous blending of religious and secular topics, and a high standard of merit. It was characteristic of him that when its publication ceased he returned to every subscriber the amount due for his unexpired subscription. His strong character and fine mind were handicapped by physical delicacy; and the latter years of his life were passed as a philosophic and cheerful looker-on, watching the tides of humanity. He died Aug. 26, 1896.

CHARLES [9] (Dan,[8] Ebenezer,[7] Benjamin,[6] Ebenezer,[5] Joseph,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at West Brookfield, Nov. 21, 1806; married first, Aug. 11, 1835, Sophia Eleanor, daughter of Solomon and Eleanor Wariner, born at Springfield, June 14, 1808; died April 26, 1858. He married second, May 8, 1860, at Detroit, Mich., Mrs. Rachel White Capen, widow of Dr. Gray, born April 5, 1824; died Aug. 27, 1899.

Charles Merriam's career was closely associated with that of his brother George, and the account given above largely pertains to the younger as well as the older partner in the now so widely known firm of G. & C. Merriam. Each had his department of the work, both joined in counsel, and so the vast dictionary and lesser publications were compiled and corrected, and their circulation deserved and secured. In the revision of the dictionary in 1864 Charles read all the proofs, seriously impairing his health by the close application necessary to such a work. After forty-five years of active connection with the firm, he retired in 1877. He united with the church at the age of twenty-two; when in Boston was a member of the Bowdoin Street Congregational Church; going to Springfield, he took a letter to the First Church, and on the formation of the South Church went into that; always helping according to his growing financial ability, and active in personal labors; had a large Bible class for young men in Springfield for years.

He was exceedingly benevolent, daily charitable, and bestowing large gifts at times to deserving causes. To the Springfield Public Library he gave thousands of dollars; to his native town he not only gave funds for the purchase of books, but a beautiful building, complete for the purposes of a library, a total donation of above $20,000 in money, and many books.

He was public-spirited, planning and helping on whatever would improve the town and schools and churches. He was greatly beloved and honored.

He died July 9, 1887.

WILLIAM [9] (Dan,[8] Ebenezer,[7] Benjamin,[6] Ebenezer,[5] Joseph,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at West Brookfield, Jan. 15, 1809; married at Troy, N. Y., Nov. 28, 1843, Mary Ann, daughter of Dr. Benjamin and ——— Weeks, born at Clarendon, Vt., Sept. 6, 1821.

He was a printer and bookbinder, excelling especially in the latter trade. Was in partnership with his brother Homer at Greenfield and Troy, N. Y., till 1851, when he left the business and settled on a farm in Greenfield, a mile from town, where he lived till 1864, when he sold and removed to the village. He developed a serious spinal disease; removed to Whately, and there died after much suffering, March 20, 1867. His widow died at Springfield, July 2, 1867.

LEWIS [9] (Dan,[8] Ebenezer,[7] Benjamin,[6] Ebenezer,[5] Joseph,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at West Brookfield, May 7, 1811; married first, Sept. 9, 1834, Lucy Bardwell, daughter of Pliny and Laurana (Bardwell) Alvord, born in Montague, June 16, 1813, died July 22, 1875. He married second, Feb. 12, 1879, Harriette Electa, daughter of Homer and Mary Pelton, and widow, successively, of ——— Bronson and ——— Hollister.

He followed the trade of the family in the Merriam printing-office at West Brookfield, founded by his father and uncle, and continued by his uncle and the brothers after their father's death, in which he became a partner. He removed to Greenfield in 1841, where he continued the printing and bookselling business. "He took an interest in everything which he thought would make the town better and more desirable as a home." [Hist. Greenfield.] For fifty years he was a prominent citizen, highly respected; holding public offices of trust; county treasurer; postmaster for twenty-one years; an active member of the Second Congregational Church.

LEWIS MERRIAM, OF GREENFIELD

" Impelled by a strength of principle and zeal in his Master's cause, his labors (for the good of others) were unceasing. Sometimes criticized for his fearless and aggressive opposition to evil, yet the love of Christ constrained him. Thousands of leaflets on temperance, Sabbath-keeping, obedience to the Ten Commandments, and other matters he printed and circulated. No one could be long in his company without hearing ' the language of the King ' whom he faithfully served, talking with men in all stations of life on the subject nearest his heart." [S. E. B., quoted by R. N. M.]

He died March 12, 1892.

HOMER [9] (Dan,[8] Ebenezer,[7] Benjamin,[6] Ebenezer,[5] Joseph,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in West Brookfield, Aug. 27, 1813; married first, Aug. 2, 1838, Jane, daughter of Dr. Benjamin and ——— Weeks, born at Clarendon, Vt., Jan. 10, 1820, died at Springfield, May 6, 1868. He married second, Nov. 11, 1869, Ellen Brown, daughter of Warham Lee and Elizabeth (Hunter) Fitch, born in Otis, Dec. 2, 1833, widow of Robert Hall Clisbe.*

Homer Merriam served his apprenticeship in the printer's craft at West Brookfield until the firm dissolved in 1831; completed his time with his brothers in Springfield. Was a wide reader. Attended public school at home in his boyhood, and had one term at Westfield Academy before completing his apprenticeship. Remained as a journeyman with his brothers until October, 1834. His health being poor, he then sought its restoration in a journey to the West. Travelled to Baltimore, Wheeling, Cincinnati, and Richmond, Ind.; but returned to Brookfield little improved. Had no definite disease, but very low pulse, — often but thirty beats a minute while able to do ordinary work, — much difficulty of digestion, and little enjoyment of life. He found the best medical adviser of all he consulted at Saratoga, N. Y., in the person of Dr. Benjamin Weeks, and later found a helpmeet in the doctor's daughter Jane. After resuming his work he found himself again subject to his malady or lack of health, and at last resorted to an Indian doctress of excellent reputation, who treated him with "roots and herbs," the homely fare of her house, and the air of the hillside (at Norwich, Mass.), and he gained decidedly in tone and vigor, so that he never lapsed back into the former condition. Yet he has always been rather below the average in physical force and enjoyment of health and strength, kept up in his large labors and cares by mental and spiritual force and wise management of his powers.

In 1838 he and his brother William began the bookbinding and selling business at Greenfield, adding that of printing soon after. They published a small and attractive edition of the Bible along with other books. In 1842 they removed to Troy, N. Y., selling out the Greenfield business to their brother Lewis and a partner of his. They carried on the same lines of business there, and added those of toy books and globe-making. They took into their firm in 1845 Ransom B. Moore. William retired from the business in 1852, and H. B. Nims became a partner. Mr. Homer Merriam sought relief from the increasing burdens of the business in buying and living on a farm at Bennington, Vt., an arrangement which had some advantages, but was given up after awhile. He was a member and an elder in the Sixth Presbyterian Church of Troy. The life there was on the whole prosperous and happy. His brothers George and Charles desired him to come to Springfield and join with them in the publication of Webster's Dictionary, in which they had been successful; and he removed thither in 1855, closing his connection with the Troy house. He made his home at Longmeadow, four miles from Springfield, for several years, then removed to the city. For almost half a century he remained at Springfield connected with the house. Became an equal partner with his brothers in 1876, and, when the company was incorporated, was elected president. Retained a species of supervision over the business, in connection with the able executive committee, till he had passed his ninety-first milestone. In October, 1904, he and his wife went to Pasadena, Cal., "to grow up with the country," as he playfully remarked, making their home with their son and daughter and the grandchildren. A serene old age is his, not free from infirmities, but lighted by human and divine love and the remembrance of honest efforts to do life's part well, and of God's wise and gracious leading through all its experiences. The compiler has received remarkably interesting letters from the venerable man while gathering materials for the articles on this branch of the family; and has had access to most valuable memoranda written out by him at various times from 1862 to the present year (1906), for which he here records his gratitude.

* Mr. Clisbe was born at Amsterdam, N. Y., June 13, 1832, and died at Springfield April 27, 1861; they were married March 25, 1857.

Children:

i. Mary Annie,[10] b. at Troy, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1843; d. at Springfield, Nov. 27, 1875.

ii. Thirza Jane, b. at Troy, N. Y., June 4, 1845; m. Dec. 2, 1874, H. Curtis Rowley, son of Warren Dunham and Harriet Maria (Curry) Rowley, b. at So. Trenton, N. Y., in 1844; prepared for college at Whitestown Seminary, but entered the Federal army Aug. 20, 1864, in the 54th N. Y. National Guards, and served till the regiment's discharge in Nov., 1864. In 1865 he went into the book and engravings business at Cincinnati, O. (firm of L. S. Currier & Co.); in 1867 he joined with his brother and an uncle and organized the firm of Curry, Rowley & Co., wholesale stationers and paper dealers, at Utica, N. Y. He removed to Springfield in 1879, and entered the house of G. & C. Merriam & Co., becoming a partner in 1882, and a very important factor in the business since that time, having been treasurer of the company some years. Has been an active member of Hope Congregational Church, and more recently of the South Church; also of the Young Men's Christian Association; is a director of the Pynchon National Bank, and otherwise connected with the best interests of the city. The sons are also members of the South Church.

Children:

1. Harold Merriam Rowley, b. at Utica, N. Y., Jan. 11, 1879. Fitted for Yale College; delayed by ill health; has travelled a good deal.

2. Arthur Merriam Rowley, b. at Springfield, Aug. 3, 1883; student in Amherst College.

iii. Charles Wadsworth, b. at Troy, N. Y., Sept. 5, 1847; after doing good elementary work in the public schools, he entered the printing office of the Springfield Republican at fourteen years of age, and worked faithfully for a year. He then became a pupil at the Easthampton Seminary, and did admirable work; was especially successful in declamation; made his mark on the school as a gentlemanly, Christian fellow. But he fell a prey to typhoid pneumonia; came home and had the best of care, but died, to the great grief of all who knew him, Oct. 3, 1864.

ELA NATHANIEL [9] (Ela,[8] Nathaniel,[7] Nathaniel,[6] Nathaniel,[5] John,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Leyden, N. Y., May 14, 1822; married Sept. 6, 1848, Mary Maria, daughter of Hon. Richard Hulbert, of Booneville, N. Y. She was born in Champion, N. Y., May 31, 1829, and died Feb. 26, 1901.

He was educated at Brown's Institute at Denmark, N. Y.; entered the Lewis Co. Bank at Martinsburg at the age of thirteen years, and followed the business through his life. Cashier in 1846; head of The Valley Bank at Booneville in 1852; removed to Ogdensburg, N. Y., in 1854, organizing the Oswegatchie Bank with which his Valley Bank was merged; in 1880 established the National Bank, of which he was cashier and a director. He was regarded a high authority in matters pertaining to the business. He was also executor or administrator of forty estates at one time and another, and earned great praise for his upright and able administration. A man of culture and refinement, strong in his convictions, loyal and patriotic, public-spirited and helpful in local utilities. President of the board of supervisors, chairman of the Republican County Committee, member of the City Council and of the board of education, president of the Musical Union, etc., he contributed much to the welfare of Ogdensburg; he was also a decided family man and ideal friend. "The world is better and brighter that he lived." He died May 22, 1893.

Child:

Nellie,[10] b. Jan. 12, 1852; resides at Ogdensburg, N. Y.

CLINTON LEVI[9] (Ela,[8] Nathaniel,[7] Nathaniel,[6] Nathaniel,[5] John,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Leyden, N. Y., March 25, 1824; married first, Dec. 5, 1849, Caroline Hart, of New York City, who was born in Turin, N. Y., Oct. 26, 1827. She died in 1893, and he subsequently married Julia E. Bush.

He received an academic education. In early life he conducted an importing dry goods business in New York City; in 1860 established a banking and stock business; retired in 1864 to his residence near the old homestead at "Homewood," Locust Grove, Leyden, N. Y.

In 1870 he was elected to Congress, where he served two terms as the Republican Representative of the counties of Lewis, Jefferson, and Herkimer. His Congressional career was notable for his successful fight against dishonesty and immorality, and his epoch-making work as a financier. Among his important bills was one prohibiting the passage of obscene literature through the mails, a bill which has made it possible to protect the children of the United States from corruption. His work on the Committee of Banking and Currency not only brought about the present system of the redemption of the currency, but led to the establishment of the national banking system, which has given financial stability and strength to the nation.

At the close of his political career Mr. Merriam retired to "Homewood," his country-place adjoining the estate of his father, General Merriam, which remained his summer home during the rest of his life, and where, with the help of a large circle of friends and a full library, he indulged his spirit of hospitality and his fondness for literature.

A man of commanding presence, broad knowledge of the world, brilliant intellect and imagination, his personal life was characterized by generous impulses, warm sympathies, pure, honest manhood, devotion to his family, loyalty to his friends, and faithfulness to his country.

He died in Washington, D. C., Feb. 18, 1900.

Children:

1075. i. Charles Collins,[10] b. Nov. 10, 1850.
1076. ii. Clinton Hart, b. Dec. 5, 1855.
iii. Ella Gertrude, b. Nov. 7, 1857; d. Aug. 7, 1863.
iv. Florence Augusta, b. Aug. 8, 1863. She was educated at Mrs. Piatt's, Utica, N. Y., and Smith College (special, class of 1886), afterward attending courses of lectures at Columbia and Stanford Universities. Before going to college she began work on birds with her brother, Dr. C. Hart Merriam, and when in college helped organize one of the first Audubon Societies of the country, with field classes for bird study. After leaving college she specialized in field ornithology, giving bird talks and holding field classes in the intervals of her own work, which was carried on not only in the East, but in South Carolina, Florida, Utah, Arizona, Oregon, California, and other Western States. In addition to articles in bird journals and magazines, she has published the following books: "Birds through an Opera-glass," 1889; "My Summer in a Mormon Village," 1895; "A-Birding on a Bronco," 1896; "Birds of Village and Field," 1898; and "A Handbook of the Birds of the Western United States," 1902. She is a member of the American Ornithologist's Union, and of the Biological Society of Washington. In 1889 she married Mr. Vernon T. Bailey, of Washington, D. C., where, when not engaged in literary work, she has taken an active interest in philanthropic work. Mr. Bailey is in the Biological Section of the United States.

JAMES SHELDON [9] (Ela,[8] Nathaniel,[7] Nathaniel,[6] Nathaniel,[5] John,[4] William,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Leyden, N. Y., May 29, 1829; married July 19, 1858, Herminie Hippeau, daughter of Prof. Celestin and Aline Herminie (Chauroy) Hippeau. She was born at Chatellerault, France, Jan. 10, 1830; died Nov. 17, 1898. Her father belonged to a distinguished family of physicians; was one of the most distinguished writers on educational matters in France; came to the United States in 1868 as a commissioner of Emperor Napoleon to make a study of our system of public education; and his reports did much to benefit the schools of France.

Mr. Merriam was graduated from Columbia College in 1854; read law and has been in practice in New York City; has devoted himself with much earnestness to the study of scientific subjects. With great family interest he began many years ago to gather information about his ancestors and all branches of his father's family in this country; corresponding widely and giving freely to others what he gathered, he also systematically recorded in genealogical methods generation after generation till he accumulated a very large and valuable record. This he has most generously placed at the disposal of the compiler of this volume, to the very large improvement of the book. See further notice in the Introduction.

Children:

i. Aline Herminie,[10] b. Jan. 4, 1860; m. Henry Harland, of Norwich, Ct., b. March 1, 1860, d. in San Remo, Italy, Dec. 20, 1905. He became eminent as a writer of fiction; some of his works were "Lady Paramount," "My Friend Prospero," and "Grey Roses." He was also editor of "The Yellow Book." Resided abroad many years.

ii. Louise Angele, b. Sept. 14, 1862; m. May 19, 1885, George Pierce Way, Jr., of Philadelphia, Pa., a graduate of Princeton University. He spent a dozen years in Florence, Rome, and Switzerland. He and his son lost their lives while climbing the Cima di Rosso, near Fornio Glacier, above Maloja, Switzerland, Aug. 2, 1900.

Child:

HENRY CLAY[9] (Lewis,[8] William,[7] Ebenezer,[6] Ebenezer,[5] John,[4] Joseph,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born at Houlton, Me., Nov. 13, 1837; married first, Jan. 16, 1866, Lucy Jane, daughter of Eleazer and Jane (Clark) Getchell, of Waterville, Me. She was drowned in a cloud-burst at midnight, April 24, 1870, on the Staked Plains of Texas, her little daughter perishing with her. He married second, in 1874, Una, daughter of John and Caroline Lucile (Lynch) Macpherson-Macneil, of Kingston, Jamaica, born Sept. 29, 1848.

He was graduated at Waterville College, in the class of 1864, A. B., elected a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and in course received the degree of A. M. But, meantime, on the outbreak of the War of the Rebellion, he was stirred and moved to offer his services to the cause; he was commissioned captain of the 20th Me. Vol. Inf. in August, 1862; was brevetted for gallantry at the battle of Antietam; after making a good record in that position, he was appointed captain in the 80th U. S. C. Vol. Inf., a regiment of colored troops, in which he distinguished himself for gallantry; from this he was promoted to be lieutenant-colonel of the 73d U. S. C., Vol. Inf. (colored), which he led in a remarkable charge in the capture of Fort Blakely, Ala., in the Mobile campaign, April 9, 1865. He was transferred to the command of the 85th U. S. C. Vol. Inf., but his conspicuous merit led to his appointment in the regular army, and he was commissioned major of the 38th U. S. Infantry in July, 1866. He was placed in command of the post of Laredo, Texas, at a time when the Mexicans were full of insolence toward our people. Major (acting Colonel) Merriam acted with such sagacity and decision as to gain the serious respect of the Mexicans and the admiration and gratitude of the people of Texas and of his superior officers. Another important piece of valuable service he rendered in the Department of the Columbia, 1877–1885. He not only aided in the successful termination of the Nez Perces War, but kept the peace with several tribes of Indians of hostile tendencies in subsequent years; built the greater part of Fort Cœur d'Alene, and wholly constructed Fort Spokane. He was commissioned colonel of the 7th U. S. Infantry, July 10, 1885; served in the Department of the Platte till 1889, and in that of the Missouri, 1889–94, then in that of the Colorado, 1894–97. In July, 1897, he was commissioned brigadier-general, U. S. A., and appointed to the command of the Department of the Columbia, which included Alaska, where he displayed the same qualities which had earned him great praise and promotions previously. On the outbreak of the Cuban War he was made major-general of volunteers, and had command of the entire Pacific coast and the Hawaiian Islands in the equipment and forwarding of troops to the Philippine Islands, and in other ways. He was in command of the two departments of the Colorado and the Missouri till his retirement for age.

But after that event Congress passed a bill, Feb. 2, 1903, authorizing the President to appoint him a major-general, U. S. A., and allow him to retire with that degree which he had so well earned. He resides at Wayne, Pa.

General Merriam is the inventor of the infantry "pack" which bears his name, and to which he has given much study and experiment. This equipment has already won most flattering success in Europe and in the United States; and the inventor has been awarded a gold medal by the French Academy of Inventors in recognition of its merits.

General Merriam has three elegant swords — one presented by his first command, Company H, Twentieth Maine Volunteers, one by the American merchants of Nuevo Laredo, in appreciation of his services in the protection of their lives and property in 1876, and the third by the officers of the Seventh Regiment on his promotion to the rank of brigadier-general in 1897, in recognition of twelve years' service as commander of that famous regiment.

JOHN LAFAYETTE [9] (William S.,[8] William B.,[7] William,[6] John,[5] Nathaniel,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born in Brookfield, Essex County, New York, Feb. 6, 1825; married first, Jan. 27, 1848, Mahala K. De Lano; she was born Jan. 10, 1830, and died in Lewes, N. Y., Feb. 28, 1857. He married second, Nov. 4, 1858, Helen M., daughter of Alanson Wilder, of Lewes, born Dec. 13, 1832.

He resided at Lewes, N. Y., till October, 1861, when he removed to St. Paul, Minn., where he resided until his death, Feb. 1, 1895.

He was an active factor in the development of the city of St. Paul, and was, from the first, eminent in some of the most successful commercial ventures, looking to the development of the city and State, being one of the most conspicuous in all that galaxy of sturdy exploiters who were identified with the growth of this city. Col. Merriam's first business venture was of a nature that had to do with providing transportation facilities for the young State. In the fall of 1860 he associated himself with Messrs. J. C. Burbank and Russell Blakely, under the firm style of Merriam & Blakely, and they, for some years, conducted the business of the Minnesota Stage Company and the Northwestern Express Company. During this period Col. Merriam was engaged in the general merchandise business at St. Paul and St. Cloud.

With the rapid development of the State, there came a demand for more complete transportation facilities, and Col. Merriam was early in the field among the incorporators of railroads to supply and even to anticipate these requirements. He was one of the promoters of what was known in later years as the St. Paul & Sioux City Railroad, first known as the Minnesota Valley Railroad; and the Worthington & Sioux Falls and the St. Paul, Stillwater & Taylor's Falls Road. He organized a construction company, which had much to do with the early completion of the Northern Pacific Railroad.

He was an incorporator and stockholder of the First National and the Merchants' National Banks. For many years he was president of the Merchants' National Bank.

Col. Merriam was a Republican of Whig antecedents, and was twice elected to the Legislature from a district which had been overwhelmingly Democratic. During his last term Col. Merriam was Speaker of the House. This was in 1870; and he remained a prominent figure in public life until 1876, when he was elected a delegate to the Republican National Convention. During all the period of his public and business life, Col. Merriam was an ardent believer in and worker for the future of St. Paul, and lived to see many of his hopes in this direction realized.

CHARLES PIERCE [9] (Levi P.,[8] Amos,[7] Amos,[6] Nathan,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] William[1]), born May 29, 1856, at Lewiston, Me. At the age of nine he accompanied his parents to Italy and lived for two years at San Francesco d'Albaro, one of the most attractive suburbs of Genoa. As schools here were out of the question, he received his tuition at home from his father and mother. On Mr. Merriam's removal to England in 1867, Charles lived with his parents for seven or eight months at Surbiton, Eng., and then his father sent him back to America to attend the Lawrence Grammar School for two years, and during most of this time he resided with his maternal grandmother, Mrs. C. J. Pierce, in North Andover. Returning to England early in 1870, he was sent, about Easter-time of that year, to the Moravian School at Königsfeld in the Black Forest in Germany, where he remained for one year. His parents visited Switzerland in April, 1871, and consulted a well-known professor at Zurich as to their son's eyes, he being very near-sighted. The result was that Mr. Merriam took his son away from school, although not quite fifteen, and employed him at out-of-door work in connection with his business, and for four years Charles tramped the streets of London collecting money for the English Condensed Milk Company. On his father's entering the Xylonite business, he became his assistant, acting in almost every capacity in the early days of the industry. He became secretary of the British Xylonite Company in 1888, shortly before his father's death; a director in 1889 and managing director in 1894, which position he still holds. Mr. Merriam married at London, June 2, 1886, Anne Susan, second daughter of Charles B. Brooke, J. P., of Highbury, London, partner in London of the American firm of Phelps, James & Co. (Phelps, Dodge & Co. in New York).

He has lived in Highbury (Islington Parish), London, for more than a quarter of a century, and has for a number of years been one of the deacons of Union Chapel, Islington (Congregational), of which the late Dr. Allon was for many years pastor. As a hobby, Mr. Merriam collected for a number of years all then ascertainable records of the Merriam family in England, and had them privately printed in 1900.

Our readers will all join in grateful acknowledgment to him for this great benefit to the family, and for the additional generosity which led him to take an active part in the compilation and issue of this volume.

(See introduction and the partial reprint of Mr. Merriam's book which follows on pages ix. to 26.)

LIEUT.-COL. WALDO MERRIAM

Waldo Merriam, son of Charles (No. 274), was born in Boston, Feb. 23, 1839, and educated in the public schools.

He was appointed lieutenant and adjutant of the 16th regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers Aug. 1, 1861; commissioned major Sept. 30, 1862, and lieutenant-colonel Nov. 28, 1862. As is well known, the 16th regiment performed most gallant service during the war, in the Army of the Potomac; and there was no braver or more efficient officer than Waldo Merriam. He was twice wounded, once at the battle of Glendale, where he received a bullet which passed through his neck between the jugular vein and the spinal column, and again in a later battle, he was the recipient of a bullet in the arm. He was finally instantly killed, at the battle of Spottsylvania, by a bullet in the head, when in command of his regiment, May 12, 1864.

LIEUT.-COL. WALDO MERRIAM

What the officers and men of his command thought of him may be best stated by quoting Captain Lombard, one of his brother officers, in his narrative of the 16th regiment which was published in the Report of the Adjutant-General of Massachusetts.

Captain Lombard writes: "Perhaps there is no man that has not wished that he could forget some deep sorrow which has fallen to his lot. With me, when I learned that Merriam was dead, I wished that I could not have known it. I was filled with grief, and I saw tears in many a soldier's eye when we last gazed on his lifeless form. He was a brave and good officer, forgetting self while serving his country, and even willing to sacrifice personal comforts for his country's good."

CONCORD

BY JOHN McKINSTRY MERRIAM, A. M.

A report made to the American Antiquarian Society, April 25, 1894, of the visit of a delegation of members to Concord, June 6, 1893. Printed by Charles Hamilton, Worcester, 1894; pp. 19.

From this pamphlet we make the following extracts by the author's kind permission.

"The farm of Maj. Simon Willard* and the site of the house of Rev. Peter Bulkeley were the first two places visited. They were the leaders of the little colony of fourteen families or more, who obtained from the General Court [of Massachuestts Bay], September. 2, 1635, a grant of a plantation six miles square at Musketaquid. By the terms of the grant the name of the place was hereafter to be Concord. . . . Peaceful possession of the soil was acquired from the Indian dwellers by a bargain concluded at the house of Peter Bulkeley. . . . Civil order was established by the formation of a New England town. . . . A Christian church was organized July 5, 1636, with Rev. Peter Bulkeley as teacher, and John Jones as pastor.

"After visiting 'the site of the old Town House and Court House on the west side of the open space, which has been the public square to the successive generations,' and the battlefield at the North Bridge, the party returned to the village, past the old Elijah Jones house, in whose yard the British troops halted after they were driven from the Bridge. . . . They then turned back to Boston, protected, so far as possible, by flanking parties. The Americans in the meantime crossed the great fields or meadows from the North Bridge to Meriam's Corner, where they were joined by Minute Men from Bedford and Reading. At this place the flanking party came down the hill to the level ground, 'with a slow but steady step, without music or a word being spoken that could be heard,' says Rev. Edmund

* Willard was from Horsemonden, one of the towns in old Kent where the Merriam family resided; not unlikely his influence led the sons of William Merriam of Hadlow to locate in Concord. [C. H. P.]

Foster, of Reading, an eye-witness. 'Silence reigned on both sides. As soon as the British gained the main road and passed a small bridge near the corner, they faced about suddenly and fired a volley of musketry upon us. They overshot, and no one, to my knowledge, was injured by the fire. The fire was immediately returned by the Americans, and two British soldiers fell dead at a little distance from each other in the road near the brook. Several of the officers were injured, including Ensign Lester.'

"The place of the encounter is the extreme eastern end of the Concord settlement, at the junction of the Lexington and Bedford roads.

". . . At the time of the Revolution there were three Meriam houses at this corner, one of which, the Ephraim Meriam house, on the Bedford road, is standing to-day. An older house, which was occupied by my father's grandfather, Josiah Meriam, was located on the Lexington road, about the same distance from the junction of the roads as is the existing house. All traces of this house have disappeared, but its location was pointed out to me by my father [Adolphus Merriam] a short time before he died.

"Josiah* Meriam was a sergeant in Captain Joseph Hosmer's company of Minute Men, and his son, Josiah, Jr., was a private in the same company. In February, 1775, the father was one of a committee appointed by the town to inspect the Minute Men; a member of the Committee of Correspondence for Concord from 1787 to 1782, and a delegate to the State Convention. . . .

"On the morning of the nineteenth of April, when the alarm was given in Concord that the British soldiers were coming, Joseph, the youngest son, my grandfather, then seven years old, remained at home, as he always said, 'to take care of the women;' and soon went with them to a place of refuge behind the hill. The British soldiers entered the house, helping themselves to whatever breakfast they could find; . . . later in the day they repassed the house, when hot johnny-cake and new-baked bread and fragrant pies could not tempt them to linger."

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

JAMES FRANKLIN MERRIAM, NO. 313

Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Merriam, of this city, reached their golden wedding day on Monday, Nov. 22, 1897. Four days later in the early evening Mr. Merriam passed quietly away at nearly 80 years of age. The following lines previously written for the occasion are now offered to the Old Residents of Lawrence and other friends:

"IN THE EVENING IT SHALL BE LIGHT"

The golden chain of fifty years
Is numbered with the past,
But we've no time for sighs or tears,
The hours move on so fast.

So many friends have journeyed on,
So many here remain,
Why should we grieve for what is gone
When we've so much to gain.

Our dearest friends beyond the vale,
  Are soothing us to rest.
Friends here, with love that cannot fail,
  Are making our lives blessed.

Perhaps when we are seen no more
  Upon the busy street,
Some one in passing by our door
  May long old friends to greet.

If we could speak we'd say just then Heaven is not far away,
You'll meet familiar faces when
  You leave the house of clay.

Think you our brightest gems are lost
  Because they're out of sight?
Miss Wetherbee, and all the host
  Of friends we miss to-night?

Called higher, one by one, that's all,
  Where these eyes cannot see.
How can a worm that's made to crawl
  See butterfly or bee?

Dear friends in Lawrence, I recall
  Your every face and name,
And dealing justly with you all,
  And loving you the same.

I send these lines, this short good-bye,
  As fades the setting sun,
The evening's here and we must try
  To finish work begun.

Tho' clouds should gather and the night
  Be sometimes dark and drear,
The stars above are always bright,
  And we must never fear.*

MARY DAVIDSON MERRIAM.
[Lawrence Paper.]
